

Court stalls oil drilling

Nixon CIA order told by Haldeman

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A Santa Barbara judge handed down a temporary restraining order Friday which bars Standard Oil from drilling 36 proposed wells in Santa Barbara Channel as approved by the State Lands Commission on Nov. 21.

The city of Santa Barbara and controller-elect Ken Cory sought the restraining order, contending that the State Lands Commission should have filed an environmental impact report before it approved the drilling.

Superior Court Judge Charles Stevens set a hearing Friday, Dec. 13, to give Standard Oil a chance to argue that the restraining order should be overturned.

If the company does not convince the judge that he was incorrect in signing the order, a hearing will be held Jan. 13 to determine whether the Lands Commission should file the environmental impact report.

The temporary restraining order applies only to wells sought by Standard Oil in the Santa Barbara Channel. But it is regarded as significant because the sites represented the first new drilling approved since the disastrous 1969 undersea oil blowout that caused a monumental oil slick centered in the Santa Barbara area.

The decision does not apply to the controversial proposal for massive drilling in federal undersea properties off the Southern California Coast. Also unaffected are wells sought by Standard, and approved by the commission in San Pedro Channel in Los Angeles.

"I am very pleased with the actions of the Superior Court," said Cory, who had advertised himself in the November general election as "the man the oil companies fear the most."

Cory added that the recent election indicated that the public disagreed with the Lands Commission approval of the proposed wells.

"As a member of the State Lands Commission after Jan. 1, I will move to make the decision in Superior Court permanent."

The Santa Barbara Channel wells were to be drilled from four already existing platforms. The installation of further platforms is even more strongly opposed by those who dislike their appearance against the skyline.

Santa Barbara City Atty. A. Barry Cappello said the city had warned the commission Nov. 21 that the commission should have filed an environmental impact report before deciding whether to approve the drilling.

He said the commission declined because it felt the drilling of wells could not have an adverse affect.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — H.R. Haldeman testified Friday that former President Richard M. Nixon "directed" that the CIA be enlisted to stall a critical early phase of the Watergate investigation because he feared it might compromise U.S. intelligence activities abroad.

Nixon, who has steadfastly offered the same explanation, meanwhile was reported by a team of court-appointed doctors as too sick to provide any testimony for the trial of his five former aides until January at the earliest.

The medical report seemed to foreclose any Nixon testimony — either in person or by deposition — since the trial is now expected to end by Christmas. It was not immediately clear if the trial, now in its ninth week, would be postponed to wait for Nixon to be sufficiently recovered to answer questions.

Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, was relaxed and confident as he answered questions put by his attorney, John J. Wilson.

He readily admitted meeting with top CIA officials on June 23, 1972 — just six days after the Watergate arrests — to pass on White House "concerns" that a full-scale FBI investigation might compromise sensitive intelligence activities abroad.

He told how Nixon expressed those concerns to him that day. Then, almost as an afterthought, he said of the President: "He gave me general instructions to follow in the meeting, which he directed me to have."

A tape of the June 23 Nixon-Haldeman meeting, played early in the trial for the jury, showed Nixon simply responding, "All right, fine," when Haldeman passed along a suggestion from John N. Mitchell and John W. Dean III that the CIA be enlisted to keep the FBI from following the Watergate money chain into Mexico.

Haldeman's testimony was the first to indicate that Nixon indeed had ordered the CIA to step in.

"Did you, at the time of the CIA discussions or at any time, have any intention to obstruct the investigation by appropriate authorities into the Thousands of workers in industries from automobiles to pudding desserts returned to work following Thanksgiving Friday to learn they will be laid off.

General Motors announced it was idling an additional 24,000 workers during January, bringing the announced number of layoffs in the auto industry after the first of the year to 112,000. More than 200,000 auto workers have already been laid off through December.

General Foods Corp. said it is closing its Dover, Del., dessert plant from Dec. 20 through Jan. 6, idling 1,100 gelatin and pudding workers.

The company said production at other plants also would be cut but not as drastically.

Celanese Corp. said it has furloughed indefinitely 3,000 textile workers and 300 fiber workers because of an "unprecedented sharpness in the reduction of demand" for clothing. The layoffs involve 13 per cent of Celanese's work force and are the largest in the company's history.

Confidentiality of Nixon medical records 'ironic'

By LAWRENCE ALTMAN

WASHINGTON — The confidentiality of the medical records of former President Richard M. Nixon provided an ironic note to the Watergate cover-up case.

The panel of three doctors that Judge John J. Sirica appointed to examine Nixon made an explicit point of protecting the confidentiality of the former president's medical records when the doctors reported that he was not well enough to testify at the trial even in a limited way, for at least another six weeks.

DURING the Nixon administration, White House staff members disregarded this ethic of confidentiality.

Under White House direction, acting on the rationale of national security, members of the special security force known as the "plumbers" broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's former psychiatrist after publication of the Pentagon Papers.

Moreover, Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward of the Washington Post, authors of All the Presi- dent's Men said that "Senator Eagleton's health records had arrived in John Ehrlichman's office before they were leaked to the press." Ehrlichman was chief domestic adviser in Nixon's administration.

Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, chairman of the medical panel, did not cite the medical reasons against the medical team that treated Nixon at the Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach. The panel expressed the same opinions that Dr. John C. Lungren, Nixon's physician, has repeatedly stated in news conferences during the former president's two hospitalizations.

LUNGREN also told Sirica in an affidavit: "Because of the patient's weakened condition, it is expected that the earliest time he could participate without a serious danger to his health, in any activity requiring substantial mental or physical effort, would be two or three months. It will be an indeterminate time before he has recovered sufficiently to travel any significant distance."

Nevertheless, because of concern by Nixon's lawyers and the panel over the sanctity of the patient-doctor relationship, a fundamental principle upon which medicine is practiced, the medical panel's action leaves a number of questions unanswered about Nixon's physical and mental health.

Explosions rip rubber plant in Texas; 10 hurt

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — A series of explosions ripped through a Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. chemical plant here Friday causing a massive fire and injuring at least 10 persons. One person was feared missing.

One of the injured was reported in critical condition. A number of nearby homes were evacuated.

A company official said fires were burning over 50 per cent of the plant, which manufactures synthetic rubber. A Goodyear spokesman said late Friday night that "all workers but one have been accounted for."

Ten persons were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital and three were admitted. Ronnie Hively, 33, was reported in critical condition.

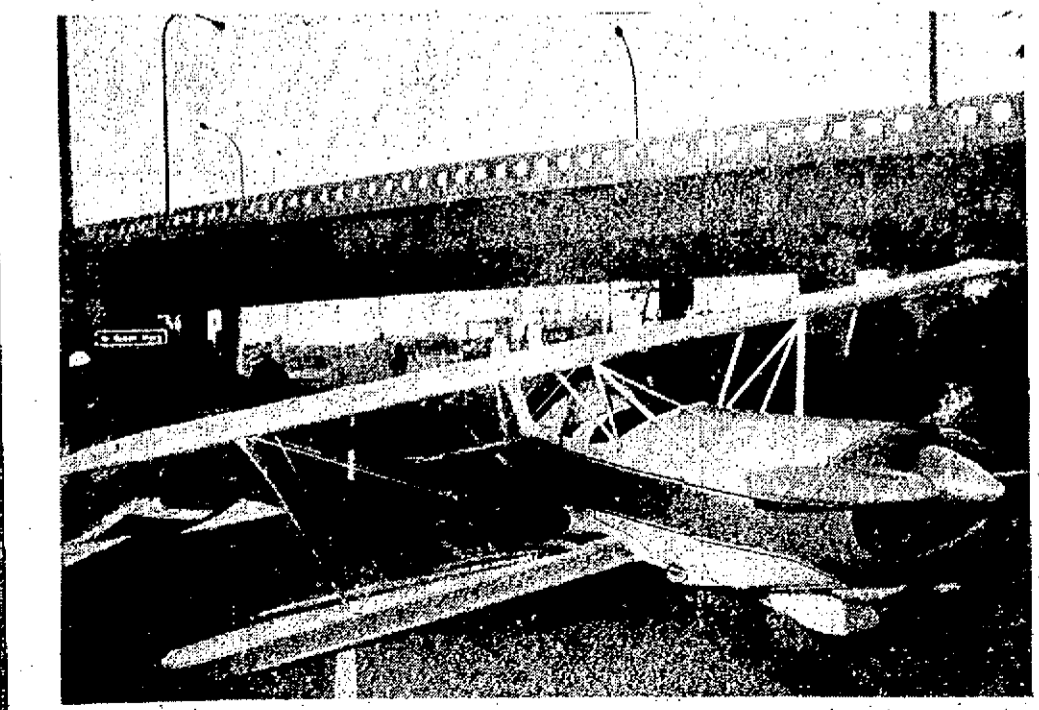

A HOSPITAL spokesman said, "It is amazing anyone got out alive."

The first explosion in the plant, which occupies about 50 acres seven miles southwest of Beaumont on Interstate 10, reportedly occurred about 8 p.m. in the isoprene unit. Isoprene is a volatile feedstock used to manufacture synthetic rubber.

Officials said there were about 50 persons in the plant at the time. There are normally 150 persons on a shift, a spokesman said, but there

$1 million shift for policy talks

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford asked Congress Friday to shift $1 million in the State Department budget to pay for U.S. participation in three major foreign policy conferences overseas. In a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert, the President said the money was needed to meet the costs of U.S. representation in Middle East peace negotiations, the last stages of the Conference on Security and Cooperation, and a meeting to review implementation of a treaty designed to prevent the spread of nuclear arms. The funds, as outlined in Ford's request, would be transferred from State Department appropriations previously earmarked for mutual educational and cultural exchange activities, "and therefore would not require an additional federal expenditure."

Prisoner tries suicide twice

CHICAGO — One of six suspects being held in the $1.3 million Armored Express Co. burglary made two unsuccessful attempts to kill himself in jail Friday, authorities said. A spokesman at the Winnebago County Jail in Rockford, Ill., said Ralph Marrera, 31, first tried to hang himself from the top of his cell door using strips of torn blanket. Shouts by prisoners brought jailers, who cut him down and had a doctor revive him with a resuscitator. When the doctor left, jail officials said, Marrera ran to the toilet and plunged his head in the water. Guards pulled him out. Marrera is accused by the FBI of being the "inside man" in the Oct. 20 looting of the Armored Express Co. vault in Chicago, the largest bank burglary in U.S. history.

Canadian oil tax hit

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Canadian Prime Minister Elliot Trudeau is gouging American consumers with a tax of more than $5 a barrel on Canadian oil sold to the U.S., Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn., said Friday. "I don't want to get into a trade war with Canada," Brock said at a news conference in his home town. "But I think this country should be more diligent in protecting itself." He said Midwestern states depend almost exclusively on Canadian oil — imports of about one million barrels a day — and are having to pay a discriminatory tax for it. It appears that our two nations are building the foundation of a wall between us at a time when we should be seeking joint solutions to mutual problems."

The FBI identified the man being held in Canada as Ronald Valente of Haverhill.

Bombs hurt 60 in popular IRA bars

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Two taverns patronized by Roman Catholics were wrecked Friday by bomb explosions, injuring more than 60 persons. Police at first said two persons were feared dead but later withdrew the report. Bombs went off without warning when the bars, both in areas that are strongholds of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, were crowded with evening drinkers. The explosions were believed to be revenge attacks by Protestant terrorist groups against the IRA.

Britain outlaws IRA

LONDON — Parliament passed emergency government legislation outlawing the Irish Republican Army in Britain Friday and Queen Elizabeth promptly signed it into law. Hundreds of police were mobilized to round up IRA suspects among the estimated two million Irish living in Britain. Scotland Yard, meantime, warned that a new wave of IRA reprisal bombings is likely and told Britons to stay clear of explosion sites in case they are boobytrapped with more bombs. The government drafted the bill following bomb attacks, blamed on the IRA, in Birmingham last week that killed 20 persons and injured nearly 200 more. Bomb blasts have killed 49 persons and injured more than 800 in Britain in the past two years as part of an IRA campaign to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Makarios on way home

ATHENS, Greece — Archbishop Makarios, on his way home to Cyprus Friday after four months in exile, told cheering Greeks that "under no circumstances will we agree to the forcible displacement of populations or partition as solutions to the Cyprus problem." Makarios also said he felt "The struggle will be hard for a final settlement. I believe I will encounter great difficulties upon my return to Cyprus." The 82-year-old bearded prelate and president of Cyprus stopped in Athens to confer with Greek officials on a common policy for Cyprus. Opposition to Makarios' return was expressed by Turkey and the Turkish Cypriot community.

Turkish premier resigns

ANKARA — Turkish Premier Sadi Irmak resigned Friday after only 12 days in office following his government's crushing defeat in a parliamentary vote of confidence. The 450-seat national assembly voted 362 to 17 against Irmak's government, which was composed mainly of independent parliamentarians and technocrats. The major political parties had made known their opposition to Irmak's government during the last few days, and the result of the vote did not come as a surprise.

DUBLIN — Cearbhall O'Dalaigh, former Irish chief justice, was nominated unopposed Friday night to succeed the late Erskine Childers as president of the Irish Republic. O'Dalaigh was nominated by the opposition Fianna Fail party and was accepted by the ruling government coalition, virtually assuring him the presidency.

Butz called on carpet by Ford, regrets Pope joke

Combined News Services

For the second time in three weeks, President Ford has felt compelled to call a top-level official on the carpet for making remarks seen as offensive by religious or ethnic groups.

Ford dressed down Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz on Friday for criticism of Pope Paul VI's position on birth control. Butz already had made a public explanation of his controversial remarks, but Ford told him that wasn't good enough and forced him to issue an apology.

On Nov. 14, Ford summoned Air Force Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to the Oval Office for a chewing-out for having talked publicly about powerful Israeli supporters in the U.S. in a manner that some considered anti-Semitic. Brown already had apologized by the time Ford got to him.

In Butz's case, the agriculture chief first sought through a public statement to minimize his reported use of a mock-Italian accent, at a breakfast meeting with newsmen, to criticize the Pope's birth control stand by saying, "He no plays the game, he no make the rules."

He made a more direct apology after getting his orders from Ford.

As in the case of Brown, Ford let it be known through Press Secretary Ron Nessen that he disapproved of Butz's remarks and in no way shared the views implied.

In Brown's case, the White House said nothing about the possibility of dismissing the general. But Nessen volunteered that Ford told Butz he did not consider his comments about the Pope to be, by themselves, cause for dismissal.

The Roman Catholic archdiocese of New York wired Ford demanding that Butz "apologize immediately or resign."

Anti-modern

To Laurence G. Broadmoore, modern is a dirty word.

"To me, the word 'modern' is a synonym for cheap, low quality, boring, homogeneous, humdrum—everything but that which kindles the fire of the human spirit," says the slim 23-year-old.

To escape this, Broadmoore, of Tivoli, N.Y., has left the 20th Century.

With his hair parted carefully in the middle and spats on his shoes, the proprietor of the Tivoli Player-Piano Shop has become a Victorian man.

The 19th Century, he says, was the last era in which pride in craftsmanship, beauty and intellectual honesty were valued. As he talks, the black ribbon on his pince-nez brushes his upturned high starched collar.

To pursue such values, the son of a Cincinnati businessman has forsaken radio, television, garbage disposals and safety razors. He chooses to live with the quiet pleasures of a Henry James novel, a recording of Irish tenor John McCormack on his hand-wound Victrola and the satisfaction of restoring a century-old player piano to factory condition. If a visitor enters Broadmoore's musty frame shop in Tivoli, an ancient Hudson Valley hamlet halfway between New York and Albany, the owner rises from his cluttered roll-top desk, greets him politely and ushers him to a glowing stove with "Brilliant Sunshine" emblazoned on its elaborate nickel grillwork.

"Anything now that tries to come through the door, I just say no," Broadmoore says, gesturing at the 60-year-old air compressor, handmade wooden piano pieces scattered about the dark workroom and the coal pile in a corner.

"There really is very little that doesn't have a better counterpart in the 19th Century. I never cease to discover ways in which things have been cheapened. It's like a New Frontier of cheapness."

Classy

Stripper Fanne Foxe is winding up a two-week engagement at Boston's premier burlesque theater after winning standing ovations and doing sellout business.

"She outclassed the other dancers," said William Glass, a Harvard student.

Miss Foxe, whose career was spurred by the publicity of her late-night dip Oct. 7 in Washington's Tidal Basin while in the company of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., appeared at Boston's Pilgrim Theater before audiences who paid $3.50 a ticket.

"I believe the crowd is much different from crowds I've worked with before," she says. "Most people I see are all dressed up. There are a lot of couples, a lot of students."

"If they really want me for a good salary, I'll keep working" after the current three-month national tour ends, says Miss Foxe, who has been earning $3,000 a week.

"But if the salary drops, I'll probably go to school next semester."

Breakdown

Inflation, not depression, remains the main economic problem, according to Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith. And the cause of inflation, he said, lies in a breakdown of the class system and the consequent aspiration of the poor to consume as much as the rich.

In Rome for a conference on the monetary system, inflation and prospects for stabilization, Galbraith told an international audience: "We are becoming victims of our own aspirations."

Dismissing monetary policies as useless for combating inflation, he said that so far such policies had only led to rising unemployment. He called instead for fiscal measures to reduce consumption aimed not at average and low incomes but at high incomes, as well as price controls to create a balance between production and demand.

Split-up

Rachel Fittler, the 77-year-old millionairess aunt of Nelson Rockefeller's wife, Happy, broke off her engagement to a 23-year-old Welsh chauffeur Friday and police were called to remove him from her estate.

"It's finished," said a member of Miss Fittler's staff at her estate in suburban Villanova, outside Philadelphia. "The engagement is off. The whole thing is over."

The engagement was revealed last month after the chauffeur, Michael Wilson, placed an announcement in a Welsh newspaper. Miss Fittler, who shared in an $8 million family inheritance in 1931, confirmed the plans.

But Thursday, after Wilson's return from a trip, she said in a telephone interview she wasn't sure about the marriage. "I sort of think it's too much for me," she said. "I don't know. We haven't talked about it."

In business

Georgia's Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, trounced in the runoff Democratic primary for governor and left $250,000 in debt, Friday announced the opening of a new fried chicken restaurant named for the one he closed rather than integrate a decade ago.

Maddox said the new Pickrick Restaurant, a cafeteria opening Tuesday in the Underground Atlanta amusement complex, will serve blacks.

"It was closed because of the civil rights act of 1964," Maddox said as workmen laid carpet and hammered on fixtures in the remodeled seafood restaurant he has bought for his new venture. "At that time, there was a question as to whether it (integration) was even the law or not, but now there is no question that it's the law."

Pay for parents

My mother is receiving Social Security benefits, and the state recently started giving her supplemental payments under the SSP program. I've been informed, by the state that I must contribute $16 a month to my mother's support.

What can the state do to me if I don't pay? How are these SSP payments funded - by the federal government or by the state? Since my mother is 81 years old, isn't she entitled to some type of old age benefits? C.L., Long Beach.

The SSP payments are old age benefits, and since your mother applied for this aid, the state can require support payments from you. On Jan. 1, the federal government instituted the Supplemental Security Income plan for the aged, blind and disabled. This replaced the California Old Age Security program. The SSP payments are the state-funded portion of the federal SSI benefits that your mother is receiving in addition to her Social Security benefits. The federal government does not require support payments from the adult offspring of SSI recipients, but the state-funded supplemental payments (SSP) are still subject to California's relative responsibility regulations, which were adopted several years ago. However, the amount of the support payments has been greatly reduced, and you are required to pay much less now than you would have been a few years ago. If you refuse to contribute to your mother's support while she's receiving SSP payments, the state can file a lawsuit against you and place a lien on your property or attach your wages to collect the money.

Uncertified

Although my wife died nearly two months ago, I still do not have the death certificate from the coroner's office. I've called the office almost daily and all they say is that they are running tests. The insurance company will not pay off without the death certificate and I am about to lose my house. Can you help? J.K., Long Beach.

An employee in the county coroner's office in Los Angeles has promised to expedite the certificate as much as possible. He said some toxicologic tests have been completed but tests for four more drugs have been ordered. When these tests are concluded, he said, all of the results will be given to a doctor who will rule on the cause of death. The delay, he said, is within normal limits when the exact cause of death isn't known and when the list of possible drugs consumed is extensive.

Still horsing around

Does Long Beach or any nearby city have any plans for equestrian facilities or will horseback riding become a thing of the past for the city dweller? S.W., Long Beach.

The proposal for an equestrian trail and stable facilities at El Dorado Park is still part of Long Beach's master plan, but due to what city officials view as lack of interest, it's unlikely the facilities will be built in the near future. There are nearby equestrian trails, however, along the east banks of the San

The Orange County Water District has begun work on an equestrian and bicycle trail in Anaheim along the Santa Ana River from Jefferson Street to Imperial Highway. The district also plans to build over the next five years a $1.2 million, 15-acre equestrian center with stables and riding rings in that area. A Long Beach official told Action Line that no action has been taken on the proposal to build an equestrian center here because the testimony at three public hearings on El Dorado Park and a survey of residents' views on park plans showed very little interest in such a facility.

Lot of dirt

We would like to know what is going to be built across the street from the U.S. Customhouse, 300 S. Ferry St., Terminal Island. There has been considerable heavy-equipment activity there and a lot of rumors are going around. C.S., San Pedro.

There are no immediate plans to build anything there; the area simply is being used by the city of Los Angeles, which owns the property, as a dirt storage site. The city currently is widening parts of Wilmington-San Pedro Road, and the dirt unearthed by this construction project is being stored at the Ferry Street site for possible future construction use elsewhere, said a spokesman for the Los Angeles Harbor Department.

Ban on smoking in elevators passed

United Press International

The Los Angeles City Council Friday unanimously passed an ordinance banning smoking in elevators but could not decide whether to extend the restrictions to food markets, theaters, hospitals and public meetings.

The elevator ordinance, passed on a 10-0 vote, must be signed by Mayor Tom Bradley and go through a 30-day waiting period before becoming law.

The ordinance makes it a misdemeanor "for any person to light, ignite or otherwise set fire to, or smoke, carry, throw or deposit any lighted cigar, cigarette or other smol-ering or smoke-producing substance within any public or private elevator open to use by the general public."

Building managers will be required to post no smoking signs, citing the law. Those who fail to post the signs and smokers who defy the ban are liable to a $500 fine and six months in jail.

The council previously gave preliminary approval to an ordinance, which would have outlawed, or sharply restricted smoking in markets, hospitals, theaters and meeting places. But councilmen could reach no agreement on a final reading Friday.

2 dismissed, 3 suspended More Sperl case firings

Associated Press

Two ranking County Marshal's officers, Inspector Richard Castaneda and Capt. William Spencer, were fired Friday in the aftermath of the scandal that led to the ouster and conviction of former Marshal Timothy Sperl.

Both men had been listed as unindicted conspirators in the Los Angeles County Grand Jury indictment of Sperl who had been charged with improperly providing manpower during duty time in the campaign of James Hayes for county supervisors in 1972.

Several of the alleged acts by the unindicted conspirators involved removal of radio logs that showed the degree of deputy marshals' involvement in the Hayes campaign.

Both dismissed men earned more than $25,000 a year and had been with the department since the 1950s. Handed 30-day suspensions — which have been served already — were Lt. John Alexander, Sgt. Millard Johnson and Deputy James Vogts.

The discipline was announced by Acting Marshal George Ferrari after hearings. The decisions can be appealed to the county Civil Service Commission.

Court upholds conviction of two

An appellate court has upheld the June 1973 convictions of two ousted Westminster officials on charges that they conspired to shake down a local rancher, officials said Friday.

It was the court's unanimous decision that there were no grounds to set aside the convictions of former Westminster mayor Derek McWhinney and former planning commissioner Tad Fujita, according to court records.

Attorneys for the pair had appealed their convictions on grounds they were found guilty "without independent corroborative evidence."

The two were convicted June 19, 1973, on felony counts of conspiracy and attempted grand theft after they apparently tried to shake down their mutual friend, strawberry farmer George Mural. Each was acquitted of a bribery charge.

Testimony during their trial included Mural's statements that the two men told him he would have to give them $10,000 — $5,000 in cash and a $5,000 check made out to Supervisor Robert W. Batlin's campaign fund — if he wanted renewal of his lease on 213 acres of county-owned land at Mile Square Regional Park.

McWhinney and Fujita were sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in state prison, but Santa Ana Superior Court Judge John L. Flynn suspended Fujita's sentence in favor of a six-month term in the Orange County Jail and a $2,500 fine as a condition of three years' probation.

Both are free pending further appeal—possibly to the California Supreme Court. McWhinney is free on $20,000 bail, and Fujita is free on his own recognizance.

The defendants were fired from their city posts shortly after the 1973 convictions.

U.S. may purchase Tahoe resort land

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (AP) — A wooded 660-acre resort on the southwest shore of Lake Tahoe probably will be purchased by the federal government next month, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said Friday.

The government would pay $3.1 million to Palo Alto electronics manufacturer William Hewlett for the Meeks Bay Resort, which includes a marina, a lodge and 135 cottages, the spokesman said.

Six plead innocent in crypt case

Six members of an Orange County high school club Friday pleaded innocent in Long Beach Municipal Court to charges they broke into a mausoleum where they drank beer and defaced crypts.

The six were among 17 juveniles and seven adults arrested by Long Beach police in a midnight raid a week ago at the Sunnyside Mausoleum, 4725 Cherry Ave.

Those arraigned Friday all were believed to be members of Anaheim's Magnolia High School Varsity M Club, authorities said.

The six were identified as David Eglinton, Curt Graves, Randall Rozar, Steven Schneider, Ruben Soto and Thomas French.

Each is charged with two counts of destroying or mutilating tombstones or monuments—Health and Safety Code violations—and one count of entering real property without the owner's consent.

The defendants entered their innocent pleas before Municipal Court Judge W.H. Winston Jr., who scheduled jury trials for each on Jan. 27 in the court of Judge Eugene Long.

Police alleged at the time of the arrests that the group had broken into a basement area of the mausoleum and had smashed the marble slabs covering two crypts.

Flowers from grave vases and numerous beer bottles were found scattered around the basement area, police said.

Drug counts against producer dropped

VENTURA (AP)—A judge agreed to drop four drug possession charges against Michael Butler, original producer of the rock musical "Hair," Friday if he uses no more drugs and takes part in a drug treatment program.

Butler, 47, of Los Angeles was diverted from prosecution in Ventura Municipal Court. Butler was arrested Oct. 1 after officers stopped him for driving erratically and found small amounts of LSD, cocaine, hashish and amphetamines in his car.

Top Edelman aide historic: a woman

OUR L.A. BUREAU

Alma Fitch, 46, will be the first woman in county history to be a chief deputy to a supervisor when she takes over the top aide's job in newly seated Supervisor Ed Edelman's office Monday.

Mrs. Fitch, a long time leader in Democratic Party politics, has headed up Edelman's Los Angeles City Council staff and has been with him for the past five years.

Her salary as chief deputy will be $28,692 a year.

Her husband, Vernon, is a construction management consultant. The couple has two children, Paul, a recent graduate of Stanford University, and Janet, a sophomore at Reed College.

Edelman's assistant chief deputy will be William Canup, 29, who also has been on Edelman's council staff.

Canup will also handle Edelman's press relations and his annual salary will be $25,701.

The County Civil Service Commission also has confirmed several other Edelman appointments, including Bob Geoghegan, 30, as a senior deputy at an annual salary of $23,028; Larry Gottlieb, 26, as a deputy at $21,792; and Jeffrey Seymour, 24, as an assistant deputy.

Edelman also has requested appointments of Daniel John Parkas, 35, an administrative analyst in the city attorney's office in Los Angeles, as a deputy and Carol Infranca, a reporter on the Burbank Review, as an assistant deputy.

These two appointments have not yet been confirmed by the Civil Service Commission.

Edelman will be sworn in at 2 p.m. Monday with the oath of office being administered by John Anson Ford, 91, who was Third District supervisor from 1934 to 1959.

Amtrak train, freight collide

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The Amtrak passenger train "Silverstar," with 213 holiday passengers, collided with an empty Seaboard Coastline freight train here Friday night. Two persons were reported injured.

Train officials said the injured were both Amtrak employees on the passenger train. They said no passengers and no one on the freight train was injured in the collision, which occurred about a mile from the Amtrak passenger terminal here.

The Amtrak train, en route from Miami and St. Petersburg to New York, sliced the freight train in half, derailling and demolishing five empty freight cars, officials said. Only the locomotive on the Amtrak train was damaged.

An unidentified train fireman jumped from the Amtrak cab moments before the impact. He received cuts and bruises, officials said. An Amtrak hostess, who was not identified, was taken to a hospital for treatment of minor injuries, officials said.

Railroad officials said the collision occurred as the freight train crossed the main line to take nine empty cars to a railyard nearby.

The freight train was halfway across the main line when the Amtrak train crashed into it, but railroad officials refused to say which train had the right-of-way.

The tracks were blocked for nearly two hours before the 14-car Amtrak train limped into the station.

The damaged Amtrak locomotive was replaced with another one from St. Petersburg and the passengers continued on their journey.

Ford grants amnesty to 18 jailed resisters

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ford granted full or conditional amnesty Friday to 18 imprisoned Vietnam war resisters but a leader of resisters in Canada called the clemency act a "blatant public relations stunt."

Ford, announcing eight full pardons and 10 conditional clemencies, said:

"These first few decisions do not end the unfinished business of clemency. But the task of formal forgiveness is under way. I hope it marks the beginning of personal forgiveness in the hearts of all Americans troubled by Vietnam and its aftermath."

Jack Colhoun, a 29-year-old deserter from Madison, Wis., said the 20,000 to 25,000 deserters or draft dodgers in Canada would "hang tight" until the administration grants unconditional amnesty.

Ford acted on the first recommendations made to him by a special amnesty board set up after he announced his earned reentry program for military and civilian opponents of the war on Sept. 16.

"Today's pardons were purely designed to play on the emotions at the start of the Christmas season and try to make people think the program is working," Colhoun said.

"We expect the government will do a lot more of this sort of thing to try to lure resisters home. But we're not going to fall for it."

Colhoun, a member of the steering committee of the American Exiles, said in Toronto the program will "never work until the President grants universal, unconditional amnesty to all resisters and ends U.S. aid to the governments of South Vietnam and Cambodia."

Gerry Condon, 26, managing editor of the exiles' magazine Amex-Canada said "people who resisted the war did so because they knew it was wrong and they were right. They are not prepared to go back from Canada to be punished."

Ford said of the 18 initial cases, sent to the clemency board, he had "reviewed each one and personally approved each one."

All 18 of the cases involved civilian draft resisters imprisoned at the time of Ford's Sept. 16 announcement. At that time, 85 civilian resisters imprisoned were furloughed from jail and board chairman Charles Goodell said Friday the 67 remaining individuals would remain free until the board and the President have disposed of their cases.

The clemency, which deals only with civilian or military personnel already convicted of a war-related offense, such as draft resistance or desertion, has a potential case load of 8,700 civilians and something over 100,000 military personnel. To date, according to Goodell, some 770 persons have applied to the clemency board for review of their cases.

Although the board did release the names of the 18 individuals involved and a summary of the 18 cases involved, Goodell refused to match names with cases or to give out the hometowns of the individuals because, said Goodell, it would violate their right to privacy.

Goodell also said the board had found "over and over again" that the applicants to the board "are not the stereotyped ideological war resisters."

"For the most part," he said, "the draft violations which we have examined were not consciously and directly related to opposition to the Vietnam War."

Of the 10 given conditional clemencies, which will become full and unconditional pardons upon fulfillment of alternate service, three were told they must perform three months of alternate service, five were told they must perform six months, one was told he must perform 10 months and one other was told he must perform 12 months of alternate service.

Knife-wielding skyjacker wounds stewardess, gives up

SASKATOON, Sask. (UPI)—A hijacker waving a steak knife and demanding to be taken to Cyprus commandeered a Canadian Pacific Airlines jetliner Friday and forced it to land in Saskatoon after slightly wounding a stewardess.

The pilot talked the man out of the hijacking and persuaded him to surrender to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Police identified the man as Maim Djemal, 30, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, a naturalized Canadian from Cyprus. He turned himself over to RCMP officers at Saskatoon and was held for arraignment today on a charge of hijacking.

Stewardess Lene Madson of Port Coquitlam, B.C., suffered superficial cuts during the hijacking. She was treated at hospital and later reboarded the flight.

The Boeing 737 jetliner, Canadian Pacific's Flight 71, was en route from Winnipeg to Edmonton, Alta., with 80 passengers and a crew of six when the man grabbed Miss Madson and demanded to be flown to Cyprus, officials said.

"The man held the stewardess briefly as a hostage. She received minor injuries—a cut to the forehead, neck and shoulder. He used a steak knife which is provided for meals on the aircraft," said RCMP Staff Sergeant E.K. Williams.

Williams said the incident occurred in the economy section of the aircraft and flight captain Bob Pitcairn, sensing something was wrong, went back to speak with the man.

"When the plane landed here, the captain and this party disembarked and the man surrendered to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. None of the other passengers were injured," the RCMP spokesman said.

Williams said at no time was the man in control of the aircraft.

A passenger, Carol Wong, 27, of Vancouver, told reporters on arrival in Vancouver that she was sitting across the aisle from the hijacker and the man acted strangely throughout the trip.

Miss Wong said the man repeatedly left his seat and went to the rear of the aircraft. "After the meal was served, the man got up and went to the bathroom again. We thought he was sick."

"Then he came back, grabbed the knife off his tray and ran back to the galley where the two stewardesses were. The next thing I heard was one of the stewardesses screaming, 'He's going to kill her! He's going to kill her!'"

"Then I saw him wrestling the stewardess to the ground and holding a knife to her throat. He yelled to the passengers, 'don't move.' The stewardess pleaded 'please don't hurt me' and the man said 'take me to Cyprus.'"

"They tried to get him to speak with the captain, but he wouldn't. The captain sent word to him that he had to get more fuel before diverting the plane to Cyprus. The captain told everyone over the intercom not to worry. The atmosphere was calm. Everyone was great. The crew was great."

"When we landed at Saskatoon, the man surrendered to the captain and he kept saying 'I'm sorry. I'm sorry. Take me to jail for 20 years. All my friends have just been killed in Cyprus.'"

The plane, which was on a transcontinental flight from Montreal to Vancouver, landed in Saskatoon about 12:15 p.m. CST after Pitcairn radioed "we're having a little trouble with a passenger."

The man had boarded the plane during a regularly scheduled stop at Winnipeg, Man., airline officials said.

The aircraft continued its flight to Edmonton and Vancouver at 2:30 p.m.

Pitcairn, 36, an 18-year veteran pilot from Vancouver, met with Vancouver reporters on his arrival. He read a brief statement, but declined to answer any questions. Other crewmembers were unavailable for comment on the hijack attempt.

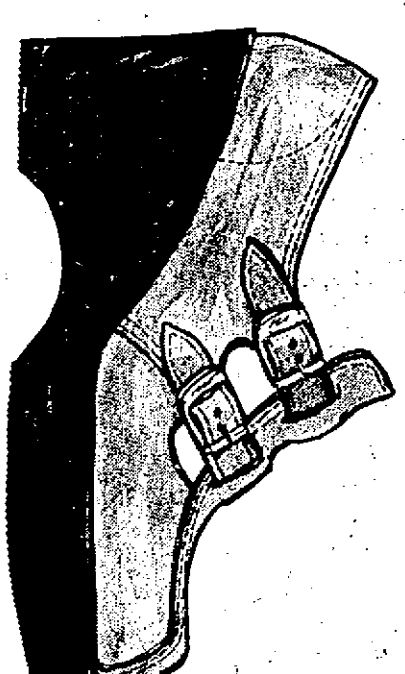

In his brief statement, Pitcairn said, "We had a hijacking today. I was able to approach the man and he allowed us to go into Saskatoon."

"When we set the aircraft down in a pre-set area, I met with the guy again and he surrendered himself to me asking that he would like to surrender to police."

"I gathered up his baggage then walked with him across the tarmac. He surrendered (to police) on his own initiative."

Pitcairn would not answer newsmen's questions. "I am extremely tired and the events of the day have finally gotten to me," he said as he left the news conference.

Selassie wealth tied up by banks

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss banking sources said Friday the new Ethiopian government may have a tough time getting ousted Emperor Haile Selassie's wealth, even if it does have written authority from the one-time emperor.

The Swiss ambassador to Ethiopia said Thursday in Addis Ababa that the new regime had informed him Selassie had signed over his wealth, which is deposited in numbered Swiss bank accounts. Some estimates have put the amount as high as $15 billion.

But Swiss banking sources said any authority to turn the money over to anyone but the depositor would require proof that it was given under "full freedom of decision."

IF THERE was any indication of guess, the sources said, the case would be turned over to the courts, and a court decision could take years and might not be in favor of the government.

The 82-year-old Selassie is under military detention, and Ethiopian sources in Addis Ababa said that his agreement to sign over the money was in exchange for his life.

The military regime already has executed 60 former government officials and military officers, including two former prime ministers and Selassie's grandson.

A Swiss spokesman said the government has no knowledge of the amounts involved, but Swiss officials said they doubted the $15 billion figure. Some estimates have ranged as low as $100 million.

ETHIOPIA'S new rulers claim the money belongs to the Ethiopian people. The country is one of the world's poorest. Its annual budget is about $500 million and its gross national product about $2 billion.

In pointing out the possibility of a court battle for the money, the banking sources noted it took six years before the Swiss supreme court ruled last July on an Algerian government bid for $13.2 million put into a Geneva bank by Abdel Khlder.

Furthermore, the Algerian claim was rejected by the court which said there was no proof that it was the rightful owner. Khlder, onetime secretary general of the National Liberation Front in Algeria, was assassinated in 1967 after he broke with the regime.

IF THE issue of Selassie's wealth could be settled, it would solve a problem that has severely strained relations between the Swiss and Ethiopian governments since the military took power in Addis Ababa last September.

Meanwhile, a former adviser to Selassie said in Montreal he has gained the cooperation of a group of "international bankers in New York City" to have the former absolute monarch brought to the United States to live.

Dr. Don McClure, a former missions adviser to Selassie, said in an interview Friday he had been in contact with two American senators as well as sources close to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, to seek their opinions on the matter.

McClure said he was told the American government would not finance a move of Selassie to the U.S. from Ethiopia or the upkeep of his household in the U.S.

UNNAMED friends of Selassie, described only as "international bankers," had then promised to finance Selassie's trip and his future upkeep, he said.

McClure said he had been in contact with Ethiopia's new government and there was no decision yet on his proposal.

McClure is a former Presbyterian missionary in Ethiopia and said he has known Selassie since 1934. He was in Montreal on a campaign to obtain technical assistance and well-drilling equipment for water holes in the Gode area of Ethiopia, where 100,000 people died of thirst because of droughts.

U.N. agency facing $45 million deficit

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Facing a deficit of $45 million in 1975, the U.N. agency charged with the care of Palestinian refugees warned Friday it may be out of business by 1975 unless an "extraordinary" effort raises more cash.

Lebanon said that any cut in the relief operations "will certainly bring a tumultuous period with grave and serious consequences" in the Middle East.

Sir John Rennie, the commissioner general of the relief agency, told the U.N. special political

Accused of making love in toilet

Shapely Ugandan foreign minister fired

KAMPALA (UPI)—Idi Amin, the president of Uganda, Thursday abruptly fired six-foot New York model Princess Elizabeth Bagaya as his foreign minister because she allegedly "made love to an unknown European" in an airport restroom in Paris.

Amin also charged Miss Bagaya, a member of the royal family of Toro, a tribal kingdom now part of Uganda, with consorting with agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the British Secret Service, and with misuse of nearly $20,000 in funds earmarked for the Uganda United Nations delegation.

He said he was particularly annoyed over a Paris airport incident in which, Uganda Radio said, "Miss Bagaya made love to an unknown European in a toilet."

(Paris) Only airport staff said Friday as far as they could recall the incident did not happen. ("Nothing like that ever happens while I'm on duty," said Mrs. Yvonne Beaufort, a toilet attendant at Orly for five years. "Does this man Amin think we are running a brothel here?") (Airport officials said Miss Bagaya passed through Orly hurriedly and was continually surrounded by other people, including the Ugandan ambassador. They said this was the case both when she arrived on a flight from Cologne, West Germany, Oct. 15 and when she left for London three days later. They said she did not even go to the toilet during her brief stopovers as far as any airport employees could recall.)

The 31-year-old former model, who favors skintight dresses and African style hairdos, became Uganda's foreign minister Feb. 19 after 18 months as Uganda's roving ambassador, whose mission was to explain and defend Amin's policies.

Her elevation to high office took her out of the world of miniskirts and fast cars and away from her career as a movie actress and model.

"I shall serve my country as did my ancestors before me," said Miss Bagaya, who has a degree to practice law.

As foreign minister, she visited Canada, West Germany and France last month. At an official Paris luncheon, she breached protocol by calling for independence for two French African territories, the Comores Islands and the Territory of the Afars and Issas.

Amin, announcing her dismissal in a Cabinet briefing, said she was a security risk, had spent $19,200 from funds allocated to the Uganda U.N. delegation and had refused to stay with the delegation during a London visit.

Diplomats said they had received reports she was in Uganda under close surveillance and without travel papers.

Windmills back in energy hunt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is getting serious about the windmill as it pumps more money into the development of new designs for the ancient energy source.

For centuries of European and Asian civilization, windmills ground grain, drove ships and pumped water. But their importance declined with the discovery of oil and the invention of the steam engine. In this country they have been used on individual farms to pump water and drive electric generators.

Now, with world energy supplies growing scarcer and costs soaring, the windmill has acquired a new appeal as a clean, limitless source of power.

The National Science Foundation and National Aeronautics and Space Administration this week awarded $500,000 contracts to two industrial firms for preliminary design of very large wind energy systems.

THE CONTRACTORS, General Electric Co. Space Division and Kaman Aerospace Corp., will examine modern versions of windmills at sizes that generate 100 kilowatts for use by small communities or farm cooperatives to 3 megawatts for possible connection into the power networks of large utility companies.

A 3-megawatt windmill would be the largest ever built. Its rotor blades would be about 200 feet in diameter and each windmill could produce enough electricity to supply 100 to 200 homes, NASA reported.

The foundation plans to invest $30 million in wind energy research projects in the next five years and already has invested nearly $1 million in construction of a 100 kilowatt windmill near Sandusky, Ohio.

The Ohio windmill, to be completed next July, will stand 160 feet tall and its 120-foot diameter blades are intended to catch the wind and convert it to enough power to run 10 homes.

THAT PROJECT and the newest studies are being managed for the foundation by NASA's Lewis Research Center, Cleveland.

Other wind energy projects sponsored by the foundation include research on the wind itself, methods of harnessing wind energy, small systems for remote areas, and the assessment of environmental, legal, social, economic and other issues regarding wind power.

The Atomic Energy Commission also announced this week that it was testing an egg-beater-shaped wind turbine whose 15-foot blades drive into the wind to generate electricity. A prototype has been mounted atop a building at the Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M.

The AEC said this vertical axis turbine has the potential for wide use in the Great Plains and other places where the wind blows regularly with sufficient velocity.

IN ANOTHER recent development, Honolulu has said it is the first American city to pay for a study of the feasibility of building windmills.

Donald Grace of the University of Hawaii Center for Engineering Research, which is conducting the study, said preliminary investigation indicates that a windmill, which costs about $50,000, would pay for itself within seven years and could last up to 50 years.

He said it takes about $7,000 a year to buy enough fuel to produce the same amount of energy as one windmill.

Farm prices lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prices farmers receive for their raw agricultural products fell an overall 1.5 per cent from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15, following a 4 per cent increase the month before, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The Crop Reporting Board said that lower prices for corn, cattle, soybeans, oranges and upland cotton were responsible for the decrease. Higher prices for milk and tomatoes partly offset the decline.

Although the pattern is not fixed, farm prices generally are reflected in wholesale prices later on and then in price changes in the supermarkets.

The 1½ per cent decrease for the month ending in mid-November brought the index of farm prices for the year to a level 0.5 per cent above mid-November 1973. The prices farmers have had to pay to meet expenses, however, were up 1 per cent from a month earlier and 17 per cent above a year ago.

Earlier Friday, the department reported further declines in grain prices a week ago because of weaker export demand and a weaker U.S. economy. The prices of corn and other key grains, that were driven up by poor harvests were reported down because of poor quality, decreased demand and high numbers of cattle grazing on grass and stubble instead of being fed grain.

7.5 million ton food aid plan set despite U.S. objections

ROME (UPI) — Over American objections, the world's major grain importing and exporting nations Friday set a target of 7.5 million tons of emergency food aid until next summer but failed to agree on who will pay for it.

Richard Bell, deputy assistant agriculture secretary, said the United States thought the problem was over-dramatized and would make no new aid commitment.

BUT DESPITE these reservations, America went along with the agreement that it will take 7.5 million tons to feed the world's hungry until the next harvest.

Addeke H. Boerma, the Dutch director general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, said it would cost $1.8 billion to buy the grain and ship it to starving people in Asia and Africa. He said a quarter to a third could come from present aid programs but new financing is needed for the rest.

Boerma said he would discuss ways of raising the money in New York Wednesday with U.N., World Bank and FAO officials. He said he may recommend that Secretary General Kurt Waldheim appeal to the oil producers for help.

Representatives of 13 nations and the European Economic Community attended the one-day "urgent intergovernmental consultation" called by Boerma at FAO headquarters in Rome. The Soviet Union and China ignored invitations to attend.

BOERMA called the meeting because the World Food Conference in Rome earlier this month failed to win commitments of emergency aid.

Reuss warning links oil waste, U.S. aid

By EDWIN L. DALE JR., New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A leading member of the House subcommittee on world financial issues warned Friday that Congress would not approve the Kissinger-Simon plan for a new $25 billion international oil financing facility unless "heroic" measures of oil conservation were "in place and operating" in other industrial countries as well as the United States.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., issued the warning as his subcommittee of the congressional Joint Economic Committee concluded brief preliminary hearings on the new plan, developed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon. Friday's witness was Thomas O. Enders, assistant secretary of state for economic and business affairs.

Congress, Reuss said, "will not stand for an indefinite bailout of other countries if they continue to squander oil." He has noted during the hearings this week that the U.S. would probably be a large lender in the new $25 billion facility.

Reuss cited "Italians whizzing up and down the autostrades at 75 miles an hour" and construction of "American-style class high-rises" in Paris as examples of the reluctance of other nations to adopt tough conservation measures.

Enders told of a schedule adopted by the newly established International Energy Agency in Paris, grouping all the main industrial countries except France. The agency is aimed at having internationally agreed oil conservation programs adopted by each member country by the end of January. He said it might be necessary to have a ministerial-level meeting early in the new year "to obtain these results," with a target of a total saving of three million barrels a day by the end of 1975 by the industrial consuming countries as a group.

Enders appeared to back away somewhat Friday from an idea he had expressed earlier this month — a form of guaranteed high price for new oil development in the consuming countries.

He did emphasize, however, that achieving "self-sufficiency" in oil for the U.S. would require not only restriction of consumption but additional supply.

Mideast nation buys into Daimler-Benz

BONN, Germany (AP) — A Middle Eastern country has bought a substantial share in Daimler-Benz, the second largest German auto firm, the West German government disclosed Friday. Unofficial sources estimated the deal amounted to as much as $400 million.

The government announcement did not say which country was involved. Speculation that the buyer was Iran was denied by an official Iranian source in Tehran. He said there was no secret purchase of Daimler-Benz shares by Iran and that there would be no reason to conceal such a transaction if it had been made.

The speculation on Iran arose because that country has been financially active in West Germany and last July bought 25.04 per cent of the giant Krupp steel concern.

MEANWHILE in Geneva, an international symposium on oil and monetary markets was told that oil money will fuel inflation for years to come.

Henri Simonet, Belgian vice president of the Commission of the European Communities, said he foresaw no hope for "appreciable slackening" of price rises soon. He said the indebtedness of oil importing countries "leads to creation of money which in turn sustains inflationary tendencies."

He said the "recycling" of oil money through investments in oil importing countries, as many officials in these countries have demanded, "is just another word to describe this indebtedness."

"Accepting recycling is, therefore, to take the opposite course of a deflationary policy."

The Daimler-Benz stock acquired by the Middle East government came from the Quandt group, a holding company controlled by Herbert Quandt and the heirs of his late brother, Harold. The group reported it sold a major part of its 14 to 15 per cent minority share in Daimler-Benz to "a foreign party" without further specification.

A government spokesman said information that the buyer was a Middle Eastern government came from Quandt. He said the buyer could be assumed to be an oil-producing country because no other state in the area has enough surplus capital for such a purchase.

Daimler-Benz produces Mercedes cars, trucks and buses and last year was second behind Volkswagen with total sales of $3.7 billion. Its profit was $102.6 million. The firm's two largest stockholders are the Flick group, a holding company which owns 40 per cent of the stock, and the Deutsche Bank, which owns more than 25 per cent.

A spokesman for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's government said the deal was "a private enterprise matter, and the German government has no reason to welcome nor regret" it.

Ratification of coal contract by striking miners in doubt

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Rumblings in the coal fields indicated Friday ratification by the nation's 120,000 striking miners of a proposed new contract was not a certainty despite the urging of United Mine Workers officials.

As copies of the proposed three-year pact were being distributed to local officials around the country, about 200 miners marched on the headquarters of UMW District 6 in Bellaire, Ohio, protesting a lack of increased safety precautions and a limit on their right to strike.

No union officials were at the headquarters, and office personnel locked the office and went home.

John Guzek, president of District 6, said, however, he felt the new contract would be ratified sometime next week.

"The biggest part, the majority of the people like it and will vote for it," Guzek said. "But you can't satisfy everybody."

Dissatisfaction with the proposal, which UMW President Arnold Miller calls "the fastest labor settlement in this decade," was not limited to Ohio.

Zane Powell, of Marion, Ill., president of the 245-member Local 9878, predicted the proposal would be rejected by Illinois' 11,500 miners.

"The men I've talked to don't like the vacation and they don't like the wages," Powell said. "I will say that Illinois will vote it down."

Jack Pauley, a miner from the town of Bolt, W. Va., said he was upset that the proposal contained no right to strike provision, although it permits a miner to remove himself from a work area if he thinks it is unsafe.

"You put one man against a company and he's mud," Pauley said. "I think it's a disgrace."

Other union officials said the vote could go either way.

"I look for it to pass," said Denny Scarford, secretary-treasurer of District 31 at Fairmont, W. Va. "I don't think it will be an overwhelming majority, but I look for it to pass."

A ratification vote is expected to be held Monday, in a union attempt to squeeze into a few days a process that had been expected to take 10 days.

UMW officials said if the contract were approved mines could open late next week for the first time since the walk-out began Nov. 12.

The contract provides a 64 per cent increase in wages and benefits. The strike has caused layoffs in coal-related industries, including steel and railroads.

Calif. clean air panel sued by ecology group

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An environmental group sued the state Air Resources Board Friday, saying the board sidestepped California law when it allowed more sulfur dioxide to be discharged into the air.

The Environmental Defense Fund of Berkeley accused the ARB of lying to avoid filing an environmental impact report on the change in statewide air quality standards for sulfur dioxide.

At its Oct. 10 meeting, the board followed the recommendation of its staff and voted unanimously to increase the allowable 24-hour concentration of sulfur dioxide from .04 parts per million (ppm) of air to .10 ppm. Sulfur dioxide is a pollutant from oil refineries and chemical and industrial plants. Scientists say it contributes to smog, but not as much as auto emissions in California.

A state Department of Health official testified that the higher level posed no health hazard. The board said the .04 standard was too stringent, and noted that the federal standard is .14 ppm.

But the Environmental Defense Fund said the change "may cause a serious environmental health problem for major cities in the state."

"Sulfur dioxide is itself, and in combination with sunlight, ozone, smoke, or ambient metals, a major health hazard," the group said.

"It is the primary cause of most air pollution disasters, including the London smog of 1952 which killed 4,000 persons."

The group said the ARB avoided filing an environmental impact report by saying its decision was aimed at protecting human health and would have no adverse effects.

That was "an intentional falsification," the group said.

The ARB's deputy executive officer, George Taylor, explained that the board's decisions are generally exempt from environmental impact reports because "our actions are entirely for the protection of the environment."

He declined further comment on the lawsuit.

The suit seeks to roll sulfur dioxide standards back to .04 ppm until an environmental report and further scientific studies are completed.

KISSINGER IN JAPAN

KISSINGER, accompanied by his wife Nancy and a son and a daughter from his previous marriage, flew in from Shanghai on board a U.S. Air Force plane.

American officials with

Kissinger said he was anxious to return to Washington to face critics of the arms limitation agreement reached one week ago at the Vladivostok summit with Soviet leaders.

A high American official on Kissinger's plane said the Chinese indicated in the opening hours of the talks Monday that they would welcome Ford's visit.

After checking by telephone with Ford twice on Tuesday and Wednesday, the secretary made the offer and the Chinese accepted, he said.

The official said Ford's visit to China will probably come in the second half of 1975 and certainly after the June visit to Washington of Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev.

HE SAID the Chinese will regard Ford's visit as a counterbalance to the Brezhnev trip and another step toward the normalization of Sino-American relations specified by the Chinese and Nixon on his pioneering journey to China two years ago.

A major matter is Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's regime on Taiwan. Resident diplomats and Chinese in Peking said there could not be absolutely normal relations until the Taiwan issue is settled.

The crux of that Washington still recognizes Chiang and Peking refuses to give full recognition to any country dealing with Taiwan.

Unanimous Security Council vote U.N. buffer duty in Golan extended

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council has calmly and unanimously voted to keep 1,200 U.N. buffer troops on the Golan Heights between Israel and Syria for another six months, defusing a potentially explosive situation.

The council voted 13-0 with China and Iraq abstaining Friday to extend the original six-month mandate of the U.N. peacekeeping forces when it expires at midnight tonight.

The council debate was unmarked by the harsh rhetoric that accompanied Arab guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat's appearance this month and the General Assembly discussion on Palestine.

Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who returned Thursday night from a four-day Middle East tour, had warned that a new Arab-Israeli war next year is a "distinct possibility" unless there is progress on a political settlement.

"The next six months must be used for a redoubled effort," Waldheim said.

The resolution extending the authorization for the troops to remain on the strategic Golan Heights called on all nations in the region to resume peace talks.

The council instructed Waldheim to report next May on developments in the Middle East situation. The secretary general had warned this week that tension between the Arabs and Israelis had developed into a "potentially explosive" situation.

In his formal recommendation, Waldheim estimated that it would cost about $40 million to keep the troops on the heights for another six months.

"My recent visit has left no doubt in my mind that all the governments concerned are anxious to reach a settlement through negotiations," Waldheim told the council.

"The tension which prevailed in the Middle East two weeks ago has noticeably lessened in recent days. There is little doubt, however, that these peacekeeping operations are not an end in themselves.

"They help to create the necessary conditions in which progress can be made in the negotiation of a political settlement. It was made clear to me that we can not expect an indefinite period of time for a settlement to be achieved."

Israeli ambassador

Yosef Tekoah called the vote "a positive development."

"It is to be hoped that despite the polarization of attitudes in the international sphere regarding the Middle East situation, the door is still open to diplomatic efforts," Tekoah said.

Ambassador Haissam Kelani of Syria said his country welcomed the vote "on the understanding that it is not a peace agreement, but only a first step."

Israel captured the heights from Syria in the 1967 Middle East war.

Nixon not gentle in '72 reshuffle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The day after President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 landslide reelection, White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman asked for — and got — the resignation of every high official in the administration.

At the Watergate conspiracy trial Friday, Haldeman acknowledged the restructuring of the executive branch "was not handled as gently as it might have been."

"AT THE President's direction, I asked for the resignation of every member of the senior White House staff, the Cabinet and in the administration," Haldeman said. "Looking back, this was not handled as gently as it might have been and it created problems."

Haldeman testified that he and John D. Ehrlichman, who was Nixon's No. 2 aide, spent much of November and December after the 1972 election at the presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains in Maryland "clearing the deck" for a major reorganization of the Executive Branch.

He said that senior staff members or Cabinet members were invited to Camp David as attention turned to their area.

John J. Wilson, Haldeman's lawyer, asked whether being invited to Camp David was a "status symbol."

"It always was a status symbol," Haldeman replied. "Then it tended to become a survival symbol."

THE MATTER came up at the trial because of testimony that then-White House Counsel John W. Dean III made a trip to Camp David to play for Haldeman and Ehrlichman, the tape of a telephone conversation between White House Special Counsel Charles W. Colson and Watergate mastermind F. Howard Hunt Jr.

Haldeman denied the testimony. "Dean didn't play the Colson-Hunt tape for me," he testified.

NIXON

MANY people, doctors included, have expressed amazement at how the health of a man could deteriorate so rapidly. While president, Nixon prided himself on his vigor and stamina.

Now, less than four months after his resignation, Nixon has been declared unable to sustain the stress of answering questions about his presidential activities. Some people had hoped the Sirica panel would satisfy their curiosity.

Physicians not connected with Nixon's case have tried to put themselves in the shoes of a panel member. Medical textbooks and standard references do not list the questions that would directly apply to Nixon's case. Historians and legal scholars are bound to wonder how the panel arrived at its decision.

But Hufnagel has declined to answer the basic question of how the panel went about its business.

HUFNAGEL has said that the panel approached the problem as if it were a case of disability. In other words, he indicated that the panel had tried to determine when Nixon would be fit to return to work.

What job? What criteria do doctors have for determining the work loads of former presidents or the average person who faces legal problems?

Did the doctors ask Nixon to walk across his bedroom at his San Clemente estate to determine how fatigued such physical exercise would make him? Did they measure his blood pressure when they arrived and then repeat the test just before they left to determine the degree of stress their short visit caused the former president? Did the panel call in a psychiatrist?

Sirica has said that he wanted to go after the truth in the Watergate case and that he would rely on expert opinions. But if there is no record of how the three medical experts went about their job, how can the public evaluate their conclusions?

NIXON CIA ORDER

Watergate break-in?" asked Wilson.

"No, sir," Haldeman replied quietly.

It was the June 23 tape, which seemed to indicate Nixon's early involvement in the cover-up, that forced Nixon's resignation within a week after he released it in early August after suppressing it for more than two years.

Haldeman said he didn't order top CIA officials Richard Helms and Vernon Walters to block the FBI investigation because "it would not have been appropriate," but merely suggested they "review" the situation with acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray III.

Rebutting point-by-point damaging testimony against him by earlier witnesses, Haldeman also said that:

—He never ordered any destruction of documents in the Watergate aftermath and that he could not remember being told anything had been destroyed.

—He never received any wiretap reports but may have been sent some material obtained by a political spy.

—He never was told the money paid the Watergate burglars was to keep their mouths shut but that the cash was for family support and attorney's fees.

—He never was told by deputy Nixon campaign director Jeb Stuart Magruder of Magruder's perjury before the grand jury and the original bugging trial.

Haldeman also said he knew nothing of plans to bug Democratic Party headquarters although his aides were in constant contact with the Nixon reelection committee.

The three medical specialists who examined Nixon at his San Clemente home last Monday told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that Nixon could not appear in court here until next Feb. 16 and would not even be able to make a deposition until Jan. 6.

State pact with UMEDCO will end at midnight

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

State Department of Health officials said they will allow a $200,000-a-month pact with UMEDCO, a family health plan owned by Long Beach physician Irving Moskowitz, to expire at midnight tonight.

The decision—apparently brought about by the failure of a subcontracting firm, UNIMED, to pay its doctors—was announced earlier this week, following Moskowitz' last-ditch appeal Tuesday in Sacramento.

"We heard responses from Dr. Moskowitz, and we did not change our position," said Department of Health spokeswoman Elizabeth

Owen. "The contract will be allowed to expire."

The UMEDCO plan—one of the largest private health care systems in the county—provides free medical services to more than 5,000 indigent persons in Long Beach, Lakewood, Bellflower, Paramount, Artesia and Hawaiian Gardens.

For the past 18 months, UMEDCO has been reimbursed for its services under contract with the state. According to terms of that contract, the patients served by UMEDCO must be eligible for MediCal. UMEDCO is reimbursed by the state at the rate of $25 a month per patient.

Ms. Owen said UMEDCO members will receive MediCal cards by mail for the continuance of their medical care.

Moskowitz was not available for comment.

Meanwhile, UMEDCO will be "closely monitored" by the regional state health office today to insure that clients receive services until midnight, Ms. Owen said.

Any debts, estimated by different sources at from $100,000 to $800,000, would be the responsibility of UMEDCO, she explained.

Moskowitz, however, has said his firm—headquartered at 4201 Long Beach Blvd.—is not in debt. Instead, Moskowitz claims UNIMED has debts ranging from $100,000 to $150,000.

"Our concern was with the management capability and whether the financial problems were affecting patient care," Ms. Owen said.

Moskowitz has maintained that all debts and poor services were the fault of UNIMED, the subcon-tracting firm that began handling the prepaid health plan last June.

Though UMEDCO was paid by the state for rendering medical services to the patients, UNIMED actually hired many of the doctors who performed the treatment, according to Ms. Owen.

Patients were treated at four area hospitals or at the offices of doctors recruited by the UNIMED program.

The state initiated its investigation when four local doctors began complaining that UNIMED was not paying them, according to Ms. Owen.

Physicians who run the emergency room at Paramount General Hospital refused to give routine treatment to UNIMED patients. Emergency treatment was given, doctors said, but the physicians complained that UNIMED had not paid them for their services.

A Bellflower doctor has begun legal action to recover $24,000 he says UNIMED owes him.

Dr. Bradford Flack, the owner of UNIMED, has continued to be unavailable for comment or to reply to Moskowitz' charges.

Among other holdings, UMEDCO owns the Long Beach Neuropsychiatric Institute, the Paramount hospital, Corritos Gardens Hospital of Hawaiian Gardens and Doctors' Hospital of La Puente.

Enforcement of antilitter laws pressed

Stringent enforcement of antilitter laws was urged Friday in a letter to the City Council from Long Beach Beautiful Inc., which said there has been an increase in street littering in the city.

"Australia now has a $200 fine enforced for litterbugs, and they claim to never have second offenders," wrote Gene Page, chairman of Long Beach Beautiful.

"Singapore has a $500 fine and no litter," she emphasized.

Mrs. Page said Long Beach Beautiful is preparing a citywide clean-up campaign, and asked if it could count on the police department to designate "at least one day a month to cite all offenders caught littering."

"We believe littering would be sharply reduced by just a few citations," she said.

Long Beach Beautiful would assume the responsibility of educating the public to the coming law enforcement on littering if the City Council will insure the organization of such support, Mrs. Page said.

Because the City Council is not meeting Tuesday, the request will be on the agenda of the Dec. 10 meeting.

L.B. Council will not meet Tuesday

The regular weekly meeting of the Long Beach City Council will not be held Tuesday because there would not be a quorum present.

Four members of the City Council will be in Houston, Tex., for the annual meeting of the National League of Cities, which runs from Sunday through Thursday.

The next scheduled meeting of the City Council is Tuesday, Dec. 10.

Senior citizens at LBCC 3,500 elderly renew studies

More than 3,500 senior citizens have joined the younger generation in attending classes at Long Beach City College this semester, college officials said Friday.

Michael L. Maas, dean of registration and records, said there are about 3,000 students over 60 in regular courses and lecture programs. Five hundred more are in special programs created for the elderly.

"There may be well over 4,000 senior citizens attending the college, but we can't be certain since enrollment in some activities doesn't require a person to state an age," Maas said.

The college's senior adult program, for students who are 62 or older offers twice-a-week bus tours to points of interest in Southern California.

Dr. Adolph Stone, professor of geography and originator of the class, said that every Tuesday and Thursday morning about 112 elderly persons board three buses for a five-hour guided tour through the Southland.

The course, "Travel in Southern California," is offered for one unit of credit during a six-week period with visits to 25 different Southland locations.

"One student is 99-years-old, a few are hard of hearing and most have some difficulty climbing stairs, but all are good students and appreciate the added learning experience," he said.

The college also offers a special Senior Citizens Mixed Chorus each Friday afternoon for 217 students ranging in age from 60 to 95. The chorus meets at a satellite teaching site close to retirement residences in downtown Long Beach.

The three-hour weekly songfests produce musical renditions of sentimental favorites popular during the Roaring 20s and provide opportunities for social get-togethers.

City College operates a Senior Adult Leisure Education Center and Lounge on the Pacific Coast Campus that is open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for cards, chess, music and fellowship.

Senior citizens choose their courses from classes that include art, crafts, drawing and painting, world affairs, meal planning, clothing construction, photography, law and sociology.

Special classes for the elderly include courses in social and economic benefits the aged can receive, contemporary health problems and preparation of food for special diets.

SANTA CLAUS' L.B. HOT LINE OPENS MONDAY

A children's "hot line" to Santa Claus—on which Long Beach boys and girls can talk to Santa or one of his helpers—goes into effect Monday.

The number for Santa is 432-4455, and he will take calls from 2 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday until Dec. 23.

Because Santa is pretty busy this time of year, explained Betty L. Davenport, supervisor of senior citizen activities for the Recreation Department, a group of Long Beach volunteers are helping to man his switchboard to handle calls from local youngsters.

The assistants are members of Golden Tours, a travel club for senior citizens sponsored by the Recreation Department. Cooperating in the program is Downtown Long Beach Associates.

Section of ranch set aside for 'dig'

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Largely because the area is rich in fossils dating back 15 million years or more, a part of the Moulton Ranch where development is planned will be set aside for geological studies.

Orange County supervisors decreed changes in a housing plan laid down by McKeon Construction Co., of Newport Beach, on 631 acres of hilly land on the south side of the San Diego Freeway between La Paz Road and Alicia Parkway.

Carol J. Stadum, a geology teacher at Huntington Beach High School, said the area is rich in fossil finds and paleontological treasures because, millions of years ago, the area now called Saddleback Valley was a part of the sea.

As the earth erupted and shut off the sea, the region dried and the changes doomed many animals and crustaceans.

Already found have been the remains of crocodiles, saber-toothed tigers and other animals which perished on the perimeter of the one-time sea as they sought food and water, Mrs. Stadum explained.

She said fossils by the hundreds have been recovered from the ranch hills and valley.

In recent years, since the Saddleback Valley and surrounding hills have come under development, many specimens have been found as bulldozers prepared building sites and roads.

"Orange County is the only place in the world where fossils fall on the road, and become a traffic hazard," Mrs. Stadum explained.

She responded to a question of how much area is included in the fossil fields with this explanation: "I really hate to say it. The developer is going to gasp."

Mrs. Stadum asked that a 20-acre site near the intersection of Moulton and Alicia Parkways be set aside for digs by geologists and paleontologists.

It was learned that students at California State University at Fullerton have mapped some of the dig sites where fossil finds have been considered important.

Supervisors sent the development plans back to the county planners, with a request for reservation of dig sites and less housing density than planned by the developers—who estimated 9,500 persons would live there. The county supervisors said it should be limited to less than 3,000.

They also objected to construction on hillsides with as much as 30 per cent grades, holding that it is too steep for building.

City College enrollment shows 10% gain

Enrollment at Long Beach City College has jumped 10 per cent above last fall.

There are 28,417 students signed up for LBCC classes, giving the college its largest number of students in its 47-year history, LBCC officials said.

The college opened with 613 students in 1927, grew to 5,597 in 1945 and reached 16,342 in 1949.

In 1958, 23,414 students were enrolled. Six years later there were 25,210 attending classes.

Student enrollment hit 26,810 in 1970 and then declined to 24,870 in fall 1972.

Two years later, the enrollment

The increase this fall came in both full-time students and part-timers.

The largest increase was at the Pacific Coast Campus. Enrollment there jumped 21 per cent. The Liberal Arts Campus had a 6 per cent increase.

However, the proportion of men to women has remained almost constant for several years. This fall there are 14,667 men and 13,750 women.

Half the student population is younger than 25½ years old. There are 7,268 younger than 21, 6,227 from 22 to 25, 7,740 from 26 to 34 and 7,182 older than 35.

Library reports 26.3 per cent drop in juvenile patrons

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

The number of books and magazines checked out from Long Beach Public Library by boys and girls has dropped 26.3 per cent over the past five years, but the reason, at least in part, is a decline in the city's school-age population.

City Librarian Frances Henselman, in her annual report for fiscal 1973-74, said total circulation in the juvenile department was 523,483, a decrease of 187,922 since 1969.

During the same period, Mrs. Henselman said, officials of Long Beach Unified School District report that enrollment in kindergarten through sixth grade decreased 13 per cent, while enrollment in grades seven through nine dropped 12 per cent.

School officials anticipate attendance will drop another 6,000 by the end of the 1970s, Mrs. Henselman said.

By contrast, adult circulation of books, pamphlets and periodicals is off only slightly. During the past fiscal year, it totaled 1,360,382, as compared to 1,441,999 five years ago, she reported.

Because of the large decrease in juvenile circulation, the overall figure for the Long Beach library system is down 12.5 per cent over the past five years, Mrs. Henselman said.

The total last fiscal year was 1,883,865, as compared to 2,152,414 in 1969.

Television-watching by youngsters undoubtedly has had an effect on the amount they read, but statistics in this area are unavailable, she said.

One area in which the Long Beach Public Library has recorded a "tremendous increase" is in the use of its film service, Mrs. Henselman said.

During the past fiscal year, the local library circulated 34,419 films. Five years ago, the total was 18,015. Mrs. Henselman pointed out that this surge came with only a "very negligible" increase in the number of films available.

"For one thing, you can't go to the corner drug store and buy a film," she said.

Paperback books, which are sold at corner drug stores, liquor stores and markets have made sharp inroads into use of the library, particularly involving "best-sellers," she said.

Mrs. Henselman also reported a 13 per cent increase in the Long Beach system's book stock. By special action of the City Council, she said, additional funds have been made available the past two years for books. This is expected to continue for an additional three years to build up the system's collection.

Smog takes a holiday

A free day for students Friday was also a day free from smog in Long Beach. Here, two young cyclists take a break from their wanderings to survey surf and the oil islands from Bluff Park and catch an all-too-rare glimpse of Catalina Island.

Hang it all— medics disagree on hammock fad

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bored with waterbeds? Then swing into the latest bedstyle — hammocks.

"I've given up my bed to sleep in a hammock," said Bruce Umbarger, who has grown tired of more conventional means of sleeping. "There's no backache because the most tension is where the trunk. And there are no worries about falling out."

A colorful netting of stretchy cotton strands called the Giant Yucatan Hammock is a popular item at specialty stores these days. They range in price and size from a $20 single to a $60 model that sleeps two or sits six.

INSTRUCTIONS with the hammock say the thing is seldom used lengthwise.

"For lounging and reading, you lie crosswise. For sleeping, you assume a diagonal position in which the body is straightened. In all positions, there is material remaining to draw up as a light cover, forming a kind of cocoon."

Despite layman endorsements like Umbarger's, medical experts differ on the hammock's therapeutic value.

"If anything, spending any length of time in a hammock would be harmful," said Dr. Stanley Kampner, an orthopedist. "A hammock doesn't offer any firm support to the spine. If you wanted to create problems for your back, regular use of a hammock is a good way to do it."

But an orthopedic surgeon, Dr. John E. Bancroft, says he knows of several young people who sleep in them and seem in fine shape.

"SLEEPING in a hammock tends to put the body in a comfortable flexed position and that's fine," he said. "It's like being in an elevated hospital bed with the head high on pillows and legs raised. It relieves the heavy strain of being stiff and upright all day."

Ellen Goldstone, who sells hammocks, called the Yucatan hammock "a gift of the gods, from conception to birth."

"Pregnant women, for whom any position is often uncomfortable, find full relief in the position the hammock affords," she said. "Further, during labor, they are suspended in the most natural position for giving birth."

Obstetricians contacted here didn't have any experience delivering babies in hammocks, but Dr. George K. Herzog Jr. said he found the technique "very interesting...for primitive people."

Bogus money seized

Secret Service special agent Robert Powis displays negatives and part of $3 million in counterfeit bills confiscated during the week in Riverside and Redlands areas. Five men have been arrested and charged in connection with the counterfeiting operation.

Community college enrollments gain

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's 100 two-year community colleges are expected to tally more than 1.1 million students when final enrollment figures are in, Chancellor Sidney W. Brossman said Friday.

"We think we'll have a 10 per cent increase over last fall," Brossman said in a statement.

Last year the community colleges reported enrollment of 1,025,000, including part-time students. It was the first time the figure had topped a million.

Besides the ongoing building program, Brossman said the schools' many job-oriented courses, low cost and opportunities for veterans and older students are responsible for the enrollment surge.

The state now contributes 42 per cent of the schools' operating costs. The community college Board of Governors wants 45 per cent.

Gold dredges to resume tests

MARYSVILLE (AP) — Dredges that once scooped millions of dollars in gold out of Northern California gravel may be started up again in January for testing.

But Arthur F. Silbert, president of Yuba Goldfields Inc., says his company is not yet certain it is ready to resume full-scale dredging operations.

"That would come after the tests, after we know more," he said.

Silbert said that two dredges still are in place at the company's 10,000-acre holdings near Marysville and that the necessary government permits have been obtained for new dredging.

Despite the price of gold reaching $184 an ounce in London Friday, Silbert said that the sale of the gravel and sand dredged up along with the gold would be an important factor.

"We are counting on that...to help make dredging for gold profitable again. We plan to sort and stack the washed material as it comes off the dredge and sell it as sand, gravel, rock and aggregate," he said.

Silbert added that when a dredge was working around the clock every day except Christmas and July 4, it moved four million tons of gravel a year. Before the operation was shut down in 1958, he said more than $137 million in gold had been dredged out of the company's holdings.

Silbert's company was formed last May from Yuba Consolidated Goldfields, which had ceased operations.

Women moving into men's cycle domain

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Motorcycles are not the sole domain of male rough-and-ready riders, according to one female bike enthusiast.

Sharon Clayton, publisher of a weekly newspaper on the sport called "Cycle News," said she is sure there are many women who share her love of bikes.

"Five million licensed United States motorcyclists are not all men, by a long shot," she said in an interview. Mrs. Clayton said many more women are beginning to ride motorcycles and many are racing and doing well.

"I don't believe in racing for myself, I don't think I have enough guts," she said. "I ride for the relaxation. I'm totally concerned with the terrain, the smell of the country when you're out of the car and on your bike, you've taken the frame away."

Mrs. Clayton said it was her husband Charles who first got her interested in motorcycles. He was using the family car for college and the only vehicle left at home was his bike. She began to ride it and soon was addicted.

The Claytons have one car and nine motorcycles in the garage of their Long Beach home. One bike is a street machine, another a trail machine, a few they are too fond of to sell and one vintage number is a 1923 Bough, twin to the one on which Lawrence of Arabia lost his life.

Mrs. Clayton said she currently is organizing a motorcycle speedway league and is confident "it's ready to go." When her business duties ease off she hopes to take a motorcycle trip from Los Angeles to Washington.

As for women's liberation, Mrs. Clayton said: "I didn't shout and scream, I just showed them what I could do."

Guns, jewelry gone

Four handguns, jewelry and coins, valued together at more than $2,900, were taken from the home of Larry Ivie, 4720 Bentrue Circle, by burglars who gained entry through an unlocked window.

Safety-conscious stores check toys

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Playful bunnies that can smother the unwary tot, pin-cushion dolls that can puncture and other dangerous toys are going down the garbage chute instead of under the Christmas tree this Yule.

"Sometimes they're destroyed right here," a clerk in the Emporium's toy department said Friday. "We never keep anything on the shelf once we have any reason to suspect they could be harmful to anyone."

Many playthings banned from sale by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in a 119-page "Special Holiday Issue" appear innocuous at first glance. But the report says closer examination shows there are donkeys that can cut, colored paper that can poison, whistles that can choke and little football figures with wire face guards that can scratch.

At the downtown Woolworth's, Dan Allen, manager of the toy department, said they also destroy the banned toys instead of sending them back to the manufacturer.

"Whenever we hear about a toy or a doll or anything else that might harm a child, it comes off the shelf immediately," Allen said, adding that they try to spot such items before they even reach the shelves.

Some stores said they keep a list of such items available for holiday shoppers who want to watch out for barbs in toyland.

French Assembly OKs liberal abortion bill

By ELIAS ANTAR
PARIS (AP) — The National Assembly, on Friday approved a liberalized abortion bill after an emotional debate during which a deputy played a recording of a fetus' heartbeat to dramatize its right to live.

The bill goes to the French Senate next Tuesday.

IT GRANTS a mother the unrestricted right to seek an abortion up to the 10th week of pregnancy. The current law permits abortions only if the mother's life is in danger.

The Vatican radio termed the bill "a new defeat for the sacred cause of protecting human life."

The radio said it was "deeply saddening" that abortion might be legalized in a "civilized country like France."

Assembly deputies wrangled over the government-sponsored bill for three days, often late into the night. The proceedings were televised across France.

The law was passed 284-189 at 4 a.m. Friday with opposition Socialists and Communists voting solidly to approve it.

THE DEPUTIES voted according to conscience rather than along party lines and most of President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's "New Majority" of moderates opposed the bill.

The abortion law was introduced in response to increasing pressure from feminist groups and a growing number of illegal abortions. Studies show that backroom abortions are running at about 300,000 a year.

The legislation was fervently opposed by the Roman Catholic Church and the National Medical Association.

Former Premier Michel Debre, in an impassioned speech before the Assembly, urged the protection of French motherhood and cried: "Are we returning to the era when France builds more coffins than cradles?"

Another deputy brought a tape recorder to the rostrum and played the heartbeat of an eight week-old fetus to a silent Assembly.

"It was very difficult to hear this muffled beat without emotion," wrote André Frossard in Le Figaro. "If there were protests from some benches, elsewhere there were tears."

HEALTH Minister Simone Veil fought the bill through with a display of calm and precision that had even opponents praising her.

"Your project condemns beings incapable of defending themselves," an opponent charged. "Madame minister, do you accept to see (embryos) thrown into the crematorium or tossed into ashcans?"

Mme. Veil passed a note to the deputy: "I cannot accept such remarks because of my past, of which you are perhaps unaware." She was shipped to a Nazi concentration camp at 17, lost her family there and still carries the tattoo mark of a camp inmate.

Rites for H.L. Hunt pending

DALLAS (UPI) — Haroldson Lafayette Hunt, a fifth grade dropout who built Texas oil exploitation into a fortune worth billions but never gave up his homey, country style of life, died Friday. He was 85.

Hunt died of the infirmities of old age in Baylor Medical Center, where he had been since Sept. 14. When he entered the hospital, his ailment was described as a virus.

Hunt's memory had been failing for several years. He fell in a bathtub in 1971 in New York and hurt his back. He recovered from the injury, but it forced him to walk in a stooped position.

Hunt died at 9:50 a.m. PDT, but his death was not announced for more than an hour. A family friend said announcement was delayed because some members of his family had to be notified.

"THE ONLY reason we can give right now for his death is old age," the friend said.

Funeral arrangements were not complete.

Hunt was an oilman who in recent years had branched off into food processing, proprietary drugs and cosmetics, but his fortune was primarily made in oil. He once said that in World War II he owned more petroleum reserves than all of the Axis countries combined.

Hunt enjoyed chatting generally about money, but changed the subject when asked directly how much he was worth. His fortune was estimated by financial experts to range from $1.5 billion to $5 billion.

"Money as money is nothing," Hunt once said. "It is just something to make bookkeeping convenient."

A NATIVE of Ramsey, Ill., Hunt left home at 15, working his way across the western United States as a farm hand, laborer, lumberjack, cowboy and mule skinner.

He got into the oil business and moved to El Dorado, Ark., in 1921, but made his fortune in Texas.

Despite his wealth, Hunt lived modestly, buying ready-to-wear suits and bow ties. He avoided Texas society, bought medium sized automobiles and drove himself, as long as he was able.

He brought his lunch to work in a paper bag for years, and in later life, his secretary served him lunches that included beef bouillon, red cabbage slaw, cherries, pecans, dates, celery, onions and orange juice.

Although his income was reported to be $1 million a week, he attended the state fairs of Texas and Louisiana as long as he was able to man booths and promote his line of cosmetics and medications.

HUNT frequently said that a man who constantly had to keep track of his money couldn't be much of a billionaire. It may never be known how much he was worth because much of his fortune now is in various trusts and enterprises run by his children.

Hunt's first wife, Lyda Bunker Hunt, a native of Lake Village, Ark., died May 6, 1955, of a stroke. His second wife, Ruth Ray Hunt, who survives him, is from Idabel, Okla.

Hunt also is survived by five daughters, Mrs. A.G. Hill, Mrs. Hugo W. Schoellkopf Jr., Miss June Hunt, Mrs. Randall A. Kreiling and Mrs. Mark Meeks; five sons, Hassie, N.B., W.H., Lamar and Ray; and 25 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Politically, he was a conservative. He organized Facts Forum and the Life Line Foundation as means of promoting his beliefs. Facts Forum, organized as a discussion project, folded in the 1950s and in 1965 the Internal Revenue Service ordered Hunt to start paying tax on Life Line.

Briefly...

Advent home suggestion; Methodist women irred

And so we come once again to the first Sunday in Advent. The word advent means an important arrival, which in this case is something of an understatement!

The season embraces the four Sundays preceding Christmas. For those who take their faith seriously it is, like Lent, a time for spiritual deepening in preparation for appreciation of the enormous events which transformed human history.

Churchgoing in December becomes inevitably more exciting, as the colors change, the rich library of pre-Christmas music comes alive, and sermons reflect a deepened focus.

Plus—in spite of some tastelessness and over-commercialization that accompanies the season—the warm feeling of enhanced friendliness, and the fun of giving. Though it is not what Christmas is about, there is certainly nothing alien to the Christmas spirit in the loving presentation of gifts, and the remembering of friends.

Over at First Methodist, Rev. Galal Gough is encouraging members to light Advent candles each Sunday at home "in anticipation of Christ's coming."

His suggestion for the first Sunday goes like this:

Lighting of the candle of hope. Leader: "We light this candle on the first Sunday of Advent to mark the beginning of the Christmas season when we celebrate the birth of Jesus, who is called The Light of the World."

Scripture: Isaiah 9:2, 6; 11:1-9.

(Share our own hopes for the season and for your future around the family circle.)

Sing: "O Come, O Come Emmanuel"

Prayer: We thank you, God, for Your love and the joy of being in Your family. Help us in the days to come to make room for the Christ Child in our hearts and home.

May the spirit of good will and hope be born in each of us. Amen.

A LUTHERAN Church—Missouri Synod executive, Rev. Dr. Leslie F. Weber, after a trip to Kenya and Ethiopia reports that "though Lutherans and other Christians are helping ease the hunger and disease of Africans during the famine that has swept the eastern segment of their continent, the situation remains heart rending."

"Very few of the nationals know English, but there are three words I heard repeatedly from children wherever I stopped—'Sir, I'm hungry.'"

Weber, primarily checking on Lutheran relief, said he saw first hand evidence of how new wells dug by Lutheran World Relief and Lutheran World Federation are helping. He found little evidence of any wasted relief money. It isn't enough to solve the problem by a long shot, but what is given does save lives.

THE PASTOR'S pantry at First Congregational, for emergency food needs of the poor, got a big boost this needful year when members of Temple Israel brought over ten large cartons of canned goods. Also some cash donations for the needy of the downtown area, amounting to more than $100 and turned over to the church's program of meals for children.

The gift, in the spirit of Succoth, the Jewish harvest festival, was over and above the annual gift by Temple Israelites to the First Congregational Ministers Discretionary Fund, in gratitude for the fact that for the past 18 years First Church has opened its sanctuary to the temple congregation during the Jewish Holy Days.

PRESIDING EPISCOPAL Bishop John M. Allin has refused "as a matter of conscience" a contribution of $672 to the Episcopal Fund for World Relief because the money was collected at a service in which three of the "illegally" ordained women functioned as priests.

This occasioned some highly unusual critical remarks by two leading women in the United Methodist Church, which has good relations with the Episcopal Church. Said Theresa Hoover, head of the Methodist Women's Division: "This sound to me like the acts of desperate men who have come face to face with a challenge to their understanding of ministry and therefore fail to understand the free-will offering of a group of Christians."

Added Peggy Billings, assistant general secretary of the Women's Division and a participant in the ecumenical service from where the donation came: "I couldn't believe it. I have never heard of an offering from a service of Christian worship being treated this way. Anything these women do seems to make the church establishment shake. You have to ask yourself why."

IN STATISTICS compiled by the National Council of Churches showing fewer members giving more, the only one of the major Protestant denominations listed as increasing its membership last year was the Southern Baptist Convention.

Mrs. King will join today in rally for Boston busing

BOSTON (UPI) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. would have wept had he lived to see the violence associated with Boston school desegregation, his widow said Friday.

Mrs. Coretta Scott King, at news conference called by local religious leaders, said she would participate in a rally and march today to show support for a federal order to bus 18,000 students to desegregate the city's schools. The event is called a "March for Quality Integrated Education."

"The issue, in my view is not really busing," she said. "The conduct of certain opponents of busing has made the issue one of racism in its broadest aspects."

"Can anyone believe that people using or condoning violence as well as vulgar racial epithets are making a democratic protest against busing?" she asked. "No. They are making an undemocratic assault on equality. This is why the attacks on school children and integration must be opposed by everyone—even those who are not fully committed to busing."

Mrs. King said the school-related violence in Boston is "an isolated throwback to what we had hoped was a forgotten era of infamy and hatred."

"I would hope that in the Christmas season now approaching, some searching of hearts takes place and a new effort can be made—not for victory over anyone, but for victory over past errors and for a future of hope for both black and white people."

Former speaker Bee dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Carlos Bee, longtime speaker pro tem of the California Assembly, died Friday night in a San Antonio hospital.

A spokesman at the Baptist Hospital said Bee, 57, had been admitted a week ago with a fractured rib suffered in a fall. But the spokesman could give no other details of Bee's death.

The Democratic assemblyman from Hayward had been visiting relatives with his wife and attending a national leadership conference when he suffered the injuries in the fall, said Jack Johnson, a spokesman for Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy.

MRS. BEE was with the veteran politician when he died, the hospital spokesman added.

Bee had been hospitalized for two weeks in October with pleuritis, but his doctor said that the pleuritis had been completely cleared up by the treatment.

Earlier this month, Bee announced he had decided to step down after serving a total of 14 years as speaker pro tem. As speaker pro tem, he had presided over Assembly floor sessions when the speaker was absent.

Bee was first elected to the Assembly in 1954 after serving as a Hayward city councilman and mayor for six years. He was recently reelected to an 11th term in the lower house, receiving 56.5 per cent of the vote on Nov. 5.

Bee had served as the speaker pro tem in every session controlled by the Democratic Party since 1959.

Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. said he was saddened by Bee's death.

"I am saddened by the sudden death of former Assembly Speaker pro tem Carlos Bee," Brown said. "During the 20 years he served in the Legislature, he maintained a constant concern for the best interests of the people of California, particularly in the area of education."

L.B. pastor reports

Ecumenical tour right on target

By LES RODNEY
Religion Editor

A Long Beach minister back from a tour of Jerusalem, Rome and Geneva by 18 Southland clergymen of the three major faiths reports that the group found Israel living "in a state of siege," and also discovered a highly successful Christian kibbutz.

Rev. Dale Whitney, pastor of Geneva Presbyterian Church, was the only Long Beach representative on the unique ecumenical expedition, which included 10 other Protestant ministers, four Roman Catholic priests and three rabbis.

The trip, bearing the father grand title of "Pre Holy Year Ecumenical Leadership Pilgrimage," was a project of the Catholic archdiocese, as part of preparation for the 1975 Holy Year proclaimed by Pope Paul. The local National Conference of Christians and Jews and the Southland Council of Churches cooperated.

"THE PURPOSE," explained Whitney in a chat this week, "was to promote interfaith communication—not only by our being together for two weeks, but by going to different places important to each of us."

In Rome the party participated in a Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral, had an audience with the Pope, and took part in a panel discussion in which, Whitney reports, there was consensus on "the richness of various traditions, and the desirability of unity without uniformity." They also had dinner with Southern California's Cardinal Manning, who happened to be in Rome.

In Israel the visiting 18 took part in a service conducted by the rabbis at the Eastern Wall in Old Jerusalem. En route back, after visiting with World Council of Churches leaders in Geneva, they joined in a free-wheeling Protestant worship in the town of Taizé, France, which has become a center for many Protestants attracted to the brothers who have taken monastic vows there and are leading "liturgical reform and prophetic witness," according to Whitney.

The spirit of the trip, the minister says, was that "none of us proselytized the other."

"We really tried to listen to one another, and some fast friendships were made. The Old Testament is the ground on which all of us stand."

THIS, HE ADDS, is the spirit of Nes Ammim, the only Christian kibbutz in Israel, which they visited. Founded by some Dutch and German Christians, it now includes some Americans.

"It is not a missionary station, but an agency of reconciliation," says Whitney. "It had the backing of former Prime Minister Eshkol, which helped it get off the ground. There was some opposition from the neighboring kibbutz, composed mostly of European ghetto fighters against the Nazis, and that can be understood. There are good neighborly relations now."

Asked whether there are tensions involving a Christian kibbutz in a Jewish state since the Christian commission IS after all to reach everybody with the message of Jesus, the minister said:

"No, because the theology of this Christian kibbutz accepts both the old Israel and the new Israel as part of God's plan. In fact, it is now building a new center to be used for Christian-Jewish dialogue."

Under the direction of a former Dutch specialist in roses, Nes Ammim is doing very well for itself and for Israeli exports. It is now turning out from 10,000 to 12,000 roses of five varieties daily, and the first yield from its avocado plantings produced more than a ton of exportable quality.

Last Christmas Nes Ammim concluded its celebration with a fellowship meal for the whole village.

IT WAS DURING the touring clerics' five days in Israel that Arab terrorists murdered four Israeli civilians and were in turn killed.

"In a sense," Whitney reports, "we found the country living in a state of siege. When we were at Masada, a historic site, there were high school kids there on a field trip, and five of them were carrying rifles. In my native I asked if they were real rifles. They were, and loaded. On all such trips I was told there is one gun for each ten people."

As any tourists, the group swam in the Dead Sea, followed the footsteps of Jesus in Jerusalem, and visited the Kurnan site of the Dead Sea Scroll discovery. They were impressed by visible Israeli achievements in converting some barren lands to fruitfulness, and by the freedom of travel for all and open access to the holy places of all faiths. They also talked to the Arab mayor of a town near Bethlehem. As for the complicated politics of the area, Whitney had these impressions:

"I think we came to understand why Israelis feel so strongly about a nation-state, both in biblical terms and as a result of World War II. Of course there has been an unfairness to some Arabs. I got the feeling from what I heard that Israel is prepared to give up a good part of the West Bank, but for sure not to Arafat and the PLO, who propose to do away with Israel."

The travelers were unanimous in their praise of the Israeli guide who was assigned to help them out, a man who lost his son in one of the wars.

"He was very helpful," says Whitney, "and none of us ever had a chance to correct him on biblical references—even though we had an Old Testament professor from Fuller Theological Seminary!"

Overall, the Long Beach pastor sums up, the purpose of the trip was fulfilled.

"All of us agreed that we came home with a better understanding of each other, and that we learned something from one another. For myself, I think it will enrich my ministry."

6 clergymen now in House

Protestant majority cut in '75 Congress

Roman Catholics and Jews increased their seats in the new Congress as a result of the recent election, while the number of Protestants dropped. But Protestants still strongly predominate both the House and Senate.

In the two branches, Roman Catholic representation rose by eight to a total of 123, while Jewish members increased by 10 to 24. The number of Protestants was down about 20 to 384, and included two clergymen elected to the House.

Among individual denominations, Roman Catholicism topped the list for number of members in the new Congress, while Methodists ranked second with 85 members and Episcopalians third, with 66 holding seats in both houses.

That same ranking prevailed in the House alone. But in the Senate, the 17 Methodists held more seats than any other denomination. The 16 Episcopalians ranked second and the 15 Presbyterians and 15 Catholics were even in third place.

The figures were gathered in a post-election survey made by the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today.

Two clergymen won seats for the first time in the House, Rev. Robert W. Edgar, a Methodist and Pennsylvania Democrat, and Rev. Robert J. Cornell, a Catholic priest and Wisconsin Democrat. Edgar is believed the first Methodist minister elected to Congress. Cornell becomes the second Catholic priest to win a seat. Jesuit Robert F. Drinan, a Massachusetts Democrat, was re-elected. Three other ordained clergymen, all Protestants, also were re-elected. They are Georgia Democrat Andrew Young, of the United Church of Christ; Alabama Republican John Buchanan, a Southern Baptist, and Washington, D.C., Democrat Walter Fauntroy, a Progressive National Baptist, a black denomination.

Leaders tour No. Vietnam

Five top American church leaders are touring Hanoi and war-devastated areas of North Vietnam at the invitation of the government of North Vietnam. The invitation was extended "in the interest of reconstruction and reconciliation" by the officially organized North Vietnamese Committee of Solidarity with the American People. Those making the journey include: Bishop Andrew G. Grutka of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Gary, Indiana, the designee for the trip of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops; Bishop Paul Washburn of the United Methodist Northern Illinois Conference, and president of his denomination's Board of Global Ministries; Reverend Paul Gregory, general secretary of the United Church of Christ's Board of World Ministries; James Gittings, an editor of A.D. magazine, representing the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; and Don Luce, executive director of Clergy and Laity Concerned.

A one-term congressman-clergyman, Indiana Republican William H. Hudnut, a United Presbyterian, lost his seat. Overall, the number of clergymen in Congress rose to six, up one.

Besides the 123 Roman Catholics, 84 Methodists, 66 Episcopalians and 24 Jews in the two houses, the counts for other denominations were:

Presbyterians, 65; Baptists, 57; United Church of Christ, 25; Lutherans, 14; Unitarian-Universalist, 13; Latter-day Saints, 10; Christian Church (Disciples), 5; Churches of Christ, 5; Eastern Orthodox, 4; Christian Science, 4; "Protestant" (unspecified), 17; various smaller denominations, 13, and religiously unaffiliated, 6.

Of the governors of the 50 states, the largest number, 14, are Roman Catholic. The numbers affiliated with other denominations are:

Methodist, 8; Presbyterian, 8; United Church of Christ, 4; Lutheran, 3; Baptist, 3; Episcopal, 3; Jewish, 2; Christian Church (Disciples), 1; Latter-day Saints, 1; Eastern Orthodox, 1; Unitarian-Universalist, 1, and unaffiliated, 1.

In Arizona, Sister Clare Dunn, 39, a high school teacher, became the first Catholic nun to win a state legislative seat.

Commenting on the new federal and state lineup religiously, Christianity Today said the election "underscored a modern trend in American politics: by and large, a candidate's religion—or lack of it—is no longer a campaign issue."

Say prayed-for farm yielded biggest crops

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

With county officials measuring the results, experimenters on an Ohio farm say they found that portions of a field that had been the object of loving prayers yielded the biggest crop.

The case offered an unusual instance of recent stepped-up interest in psychic phenomena, viewed by many with keen skepticism.

"Somehow God's creative energy of growth can be channeled through us even to plants," says Gus Alexander of Wright State University, who holds a doctorate in communications research and who set up the project.

It was carried out on a soybean field near Jamestown, Ohio, east of Dayton, with daily prayerful attention of a church group focused on six designated plots, but not on six adjoining control plots.

Alexander says the yield of soybeans receiving the special attention was increased by 4 per cent over the comparable control plot, even though the experiment had extended over only a third of the growing season.

"If put to use, our psychic abilities—our abilities of prayer—could vastly improve the world's food supply," says Alexander, who teaches speech communication and who began studying psychic phenomena about a year ago.

"By some means, when a person concentrates on sending his love, God channels that love to others, to a pet or even a plot of soybeans," he said in a telephone interview. In checking results of the experiment late in October, the Greene County agent's technical assistant, Donald H. Tate, was on hand to weigh the yields.

According to the figures, five of the experimental strips had produced heavier yields than had adjacent control strips, while in the sixth case, the control strip had a slightly greater yield.

In the experiment, a group of 10 people at Dayton's Church of the Golden Key, supplied with diagrams of the soybean plots, took on the task of "sending love" to the experimental areas each night at 11:30 p.m. for about 40 days.

The Rev. Noel Cornely, founder and minister of the non-denominational church which incorporates ideas of various major religions and which works with extra-sensory perception, says:

"These experiments deal with the direct communication of energy, as a kind of nourishment."

Alexander said the process involves "psychokinesis with living things. It's similar to what people do through prayer and to the whole idea of spiritual healing. In this case, it's healing for the soybeans."

Although psychic communication involving human beings has been attested by various researchers, the idea of such communication with vegetation has been generally considered, far-fetched.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Don't poor-mouth life

After making an enthusiastic speech about how really exciting life is, I was approached by a visibly far-out member of the younger generation. "Don't make me laugh," he griped. "What do you mean, life is exciting?"

He did not give me a chance to reply; he turned and walked away rapidly. But his question lingered. Just what is there to make life good?

The answer is very clear: There is plenty of good in this world for those who are able to see it and take it. What the world is to you or to me and through us to others depends very largely upon our attitude — upon our cast of mind. It depends upon the motivation in which we approach the problems and opportunities of human existence.

Recently I was in Halifax, Nova Scotia to give a talk to an audience made up of sales people and the general public also. I hailed a taxicab and told the driver, "St. Patrick's Auditorium."

AS WE started off, the driver, a pleasant-looking young fellow, said: "There's a man from New York going to speak out there tonight on Positive Thinking."

"That's right," I answered.

"I would like to go to the meeting," he continued. "But I can't. You see, I attend college during the day — Dalhousie University — and at night drive this cab. My wife would like to go too, but she's a nurse and can't be off tonight."

"Well, you've got the speaker right here in your taxi."

"What do you know!" he said in surprise. "Say, how about giving me a rundown on your speech, 'Why Positive Thinkers Get Positive Results?' I really go for that positive thinking."

"I don't think you need it," I replied. "You and your wife are a hard-working couple. You're really with it and I admire you."

"Thanks," he said.

"But don't be sorry for us. We've got no complaints. We're having a good time and we like it. We think it's a wonderful world and this is a terrific time to be living. My father always taught me to live decently, have a cheerful attitude and be a positive thinker. My wife and I have some definite goals we're working toward. Guess that's why we are all for that positive thinking."

I told him about the far-out fellow who growled about nothing in life being good. The young man shook his head. "You know, I feel sorry for a guy like that, so mad at everybody and mad at himself. Someone should straighten him out."

How refreshing it was to encounter an upbeat young person with such a vital conception of what life is all about!

Of course any knowledgeable individual today is only too painfully aware that not everything in this present-day world is all sweetness and light. We have ugly facts to deal with, we are faced with disturbing trends, we are involved in perplexing situations. But one of the secrets of living successfully is to balance one aspect of experience against another and keep your perspective.

WHEN YOU GET to feeling dismayed by all the rotten conditions in the world today, the crumbling of standards, the corruption, the decadence, remember, that is not the whole story. There are also beautiful mountains and rushing rivers, surging seas and magnificent forests and that the stars are still there in the night sky and the sun still rises. Remember too that everywhere there are thousands upon thousands of good, honest human beings who know in their minds and hearts that life is good no matter what — people who do not let adverse conditions or any difficulty get them down. And actually there is a lot

Pilgrimage of Hope

More than 700 racially integrated members of the California-based Peoples Temple of the Disciples of Christ, led by Pastor Jim V. Jones of the Redwood Valley Church, are seen in Washington, D.C. where they met with congressmen. Purpose of the 10,- 000 mile pilgrimage in the temple's caravan of busses was to "show America's better side, and to stress that in spite of current tensions, Martin Luther King's dream of American brotherhood, cooperation and good will is not dead."

Ask Congress probe on Chile

Ten prominent church, university and union officials have urged Congress to hold public hearings on the roles of the Central Intelligence Agency, State Department and American corporations in last year's overthrow of the Allende government in Chile.

In an open letter, they refer to "recent disclosures that some $8 million of U.S. taxpayer's funds were used to accomplish one of the bloodiest coups in recent history" in Chile, "replacing a constitutionally elected government with a brutal police state." (A story of the torture of an American nurse in Chile by the junta is now being investigated.)

Signers from the religious world are William P. Thompson, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church; Rev. Dr. Sterling Cary, president of the National Council of Churches; Bishop James Mathews, bishop of the United Methodist Church, Washington, D.C.; Archbishop Iakovos, primate of the Greek Orthodox Church, and Rev. Dr. John Coventry Smith, president of the World Council of Churches.

Lutheran League

The Board of Governors of the International Lutheran Laymen's League has adopted a $5.9 million budget to carry out a mass media Gospel outreach around the world. "This is a record budget for the League," said Gus S. Melde of Dallas, the president, "and all 180,000 members of the League will have to put forth special efforts during the year if we are to meet our needs." Melde added that actually the increases "do not fully meet with the inflationary spiral in the United States and especially overseas."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

A lot of people acknowledge God as Father. But do they really understand the man He made?

As you get a deeper understanding of the Bible, the spiritual nature of man and of all creation appears. Then Christian unity and the brotherhood of man appear in your life, too.

Selections from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, to be read in our church service this Sunday, will help you understand the Bible message of brotherly love in a new light.

We'd love to welcome you.

Whale migration begins off coast

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The annual sojourn of great gray whales heading toward warmer waters to breed and bear their young is under way.

"We're seeing two or three each day," said naturalist Al Pentis. By early January, he said, 80 or 90 of the southbound whales will be passing daily.

The National Marine Fisheries Service is reported ready with citations for boatmen who disturb the mammals. Pentis said fines would range up to $1,000 "and anyone caught deliberately harassing the whales can get up to one year in jail."

There could be a record count of 15,000 whales leaving Arctic waters for lagoons off Mexico's Baja California peninsula, Pentis said.

But he and government whalewatchers are uncertain of the exact number of migrating grays because of killings reported in the Northern Pacific where foreign fishermen work.

By next April, the return trip is usually over.

Moretti 'interested' in $43,404 job with state

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Bob Moretti, former Assembly speaker and a defeated Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said Friday he still is very interested in being appointed secretary of the State Resources Agency.

Taking a few minutes off while moving into his new home in a wealthy Sacramento neighborhood, Moretti told a newsman, "I have told Jerry Brown that I was interested in the post."

Moretti, who was dressed in tan work clothes, said he had been told that Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. hadn't made any final decision on who would fill the $43,404-a-year post.

"I would like to stay in state government," said Moretti, who served in the Assembly for 10 years, four of those as speaker.

But he said if he doesn't receive an appointment he may go into private business.

Saloon stays open after bars close

OAKLAND (UPI)—When the other bars throw you out, the New Hope Saloon welcomes you in.

But you may be shocked into sobriety once you get inside. At least that's the aim of the New Hope's proprietors.

The New Hope is a drop-in facility for drinkers. More than 125,000 have stopped there since it opened 16 months ago.

A stranger in town, seeing the big "Saloon" sign, is in for a surprise when he gets to the bar.

The spacious hall has benches, chairs and stools at a bar-like table. Its patrons sit around, sipping juice or coffee from paper cups.

"We're in the business of screening and counseling the street drinker," says Keith Lewis, head of saloon's staff of six. "We want to find out his individual needs and problems. We can refer him or her to the numerous services available."

The drinker may be sent to a more intensive detoxification center, to a clinic for medical care, or some place where he can get a bed for the night if he needs it.

There are those who just want to take a shower and nap for a while before going home after a bout on the town. The New Hope Saloon welcomes them.

"All of us know how to respond to the needs of the street drinker," says Lynn Armstrong, another of the staff members. "We know their language, and how to communicate with them. And, most important, they trust us."

Vineyards cut back on new plantings

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California's vineyards cut back sharply on planting new vines this year, reversing a seven-year upward trend, the California Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Friday.

The joint state-federal agency said only 29,935 acres of new vines have been planted in 1974, compared to 67,059 acres in 1973 and 61,961 in 1972.

Despite the drop in new plantings, total grape acreage reached a record high 648,827 acres, exceeding the previous mark of 629,605 set in the state in 1926.

The drop in the number of new plantings — especially those for wine grapes — was expected due to a number of economic factors, said Joseph Seibert, an agency spokesman.

"It's just a matter of economics. In the last two years we've had pretty heavy plantings," he said.

"Now it's fallen off a bit."

"This was a pretty good year for grape products, but prices were off," Seibert added. "It's pretty clear that wine picture isn't as rosy as it has been."

He cited smaller increases in wine consumption than had been expected, coupled with the greatly increased number of acres of vines in production as the reason for the drop.

Wine grapes account for the largest portion of the acres under cultivation, the service said.

Slightly more than 322,000 acres are devoted to wine grapes, 251,100 for raisin grapes, 72,837 for table grapes and 2,846 acres for rootstock for future vineyards.

The agency reported Cabernet Sauvignon was the leading variety of wine grape planted this year with 4,304 acres, followed by Zinfandel with 2,035 acres. Chardonnay was next with 1,927 acres, then Cabernet with 1,879, Pinot Noir 1,550, Thompson Seedless, 1,532 and Chenin Blanc, 1,420.

A tailor had fun growing a dieffenbachia in a nail keg in his tailor shop. The steam from the pressing machine provided the humidity. It was set back from direct west sunlight exposure, which was ideal for the plant. The dieffenbachia was easily over eight feet tall. (See photo). The tailor could have cut it back anywhere along the trunk, shortened the height growth and forced a secondary branch or two to grow.

Improper watering is one of the main factors for unsuccessful culture of house plants. Beginning of limp leaves is a sure sign plant needs a thirst-quenching drink of water.

Dog repellent suggestions.

A while back I appealed to you readers to share your successful experiences in combatting and preventing dogs from leaving their droppings and urine spots on lawns or gardens. The inquiry was due to one of our readers who had tried several commercial deterrents on the market with no success. In desperation she wrote us to learn if any of our readers had luck in discouraging dogs from toileting on their lawn or garden.

Several of our readers responded and here are some of their suggestions.

From A. Wallace R. Ph. Buy a bottle of solution of formaldehyde at your drug store. It comes in pints. Pour a small amount of the solution around the dropping for three or four days. The dog will smell it since they always come to drop at the same place — and you will see results! For urine areas use the same method.

Irene Pritchard writes . . . "I have not tried this, but have been told that plain household ammonia (not lemon) sprinkled around will keep dogs away."

Ted Fujikuni a professional gardener used cayenne pepper on his lawn and garden and said, "an application lasted nearly six months. Also worked on cats droppings in his yard. No dogs, no cats."

A horticulture teacher recommends moth balls to discourage dogs from coming back to leave their "personals."

So, we thank these folks for taking time to let us know a gardener can protect his property from having loose dogs use his lawn or garden as a public restroom.

Dormant spraying time.

Mid-November is the time to start dormant spraying deciduous fruit trees; cane berries, and it is also a good idea to spray grapes whether of bush type or covering a support.

"Dormant spray" means a combination of two separate sprays, one of chemical of lime sulphur or sulphur, or copper sulphate, is a horticultural oil spray for killing overwintering pests such as scale and spider mites and other similar kinds of insects. Directions are followed on each container label as to the amount to add per each gallon of water from each separate spray, into the spray tank or spray gun. Thusly together, they are called a complete dormant spray. (Do not use a lime sulphur or sulphur spray for apricots).

Tree must be well watered before spraying. The soil under the tree branches, too, is sprayed, after the tree has been thoroughly spray drenched.

Citrus on the other hand may become a questionable problem to some gardeners. Usually about this time perhaps 25 per cent of the leaves may drop off which is a normal condition. Should all the leaves drop within several days time indicates possible spider mites infestation.

Happily an oil spray not only attacks scale, but also spider mites. Citrus should be sprayed thoroughly like a deciduous fruit trees.

Gardening Jobs

Bare spaces of sunny backyard can be made colorful by sowing a mixture of wildflower seeds. Soil should be soaked six to eight inches deep. Half-inch layer of manure needs to be cultivated two to three inches deep, then raked over. The seeds should be mixed in a bucket half filled with builders sand, or three quarters full of manure mixed with the seed. As the seed mixture is hand scattered, the material separates the seeds so they don't fall too thick together, which means more uniform seeds spreading. The area is sprinkled carefully to prevent puddling, then kept moist as if grass seed was sown in a lawn.

Azaleas need sufficient (deep) drinks of water to soak the whole plant's root ball. Should a plant or two need to be transplanted, they can be done now. The plant hole should be twice the diameter of the root ball and two to four inches deeper than the length of the root. Hole should be filled with water fortified with vitamin B-1, then plant set out after water has disappeared into the soil.

Ask the Old Farmer: Please explain what "long of tooth" means. No one has ever come up with a good explanation yet. Bet you will. G.H., Reading, Pa.

The teeth of certain animals never stop growing and may in time become so long the animal can't eat and will literally starve. This indicates age.

Home Hint: Your white woodwork can be cleaned easily with baking soda dissolved with water and then rubbed on with a soft cloth . . . Middle quarters: It has a crown.

Share the Spirit of Christmas

What do you tell a child on Christmas Day when there is nothing under the tree . . . nothing in the stocking . . . nothing on the table? It's hard enough for an adult to face a bleak holiday season, but it's almost impossible to make a child understand "why". Despite the efforts of many individual private and governmental agencies there are many needy families in Long Beach who just don't qualify for much aid of any kind. Last year the people of Long Beach contributed $9,050, along with canned goods and toys to make Christmas merrier for 2,500 families.

Operation Christmas

Operation Christmas' goal for 1974 is $12,000 so that even more families can be helped. Operation Christmas gives you the chance to take the hard cold facts out of an otherwise warm, happy season of the year.

Irish-Trojan war!

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

The name of the game today is USC vs. Notre Dame, and little more need be said here about that—except that, if you aren't going to be at the Coliseum, you can see it on Channel 7, starting at 2 p.m.

For those who care, there's also the Army-Navy football game at 10:15 this morning on the same channel.

Basketball fans can see the Lakers play the Golden State Warriors at Oakland at 8 tonight on Channel 5. The same station will present the UCLA-DePaul basketball game, taped earlier, at 10:30 p.m.

WHILE DADDY'S watching the Trojans and the Fighting Irish, the youngsters in families with two TV sets may choose to tune in "Toys for Tots," a three-hour program on Channel 13 starting at 2 p.m. Johnny Gilbert and Skip 'n' Woofers host the proceedings and a number of celebrities are scheduled to take part in the show to aid the Marine Corps' annual "Toys for Tots" campaign.

A HALF-HOUR KNXT News special, "Hypertension: The Silent Killer," will air on Channel 2 at 8:30 tonight, preempting "Paul Sandin Friends and Lovers."

KNXT's Glenda Wina is the reporter on the prime-time special examining high blood pressure, or hypertension, which claims about 250,000 deaths annually in the United States. She notes that half the persons who suffer from hypertension don't even know they have it.

GEORGE PUTNAM, who has been off television since leaving Channel 5 last December, will co-host a weekly one-hour version of his "Talk Back" audience participation interview show on Channel 13, beginning Jan. 6.

His cohort? Would you believe Mort Sahl?

Yes, the conservative and the liberal will team up to question—along with the audience—controversial guests.

"Talk Back" is due to be syndicated to stations across the country. On Channel 13 it will air on Mondays from 8 to 9 p.m.

THE LONG BEACH Junior Concert Band, directed by Marvin Marker, will participate for the 17th year in a row in Sunday's "Santa Claus Lane Parade of Stars" in Hollywood. The parade will be televised from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday on both Channel 11 and Channel 13.

Long Beach's 150-piece California champion youth band has been assigned to the "Santa Claus Section" at the end of the parade lineup. Featured with the band will be its "Mace Drum Major," Jim Thompson, and champion baton twirler, Sherri Agnifili, along with the precision girls' "Pageantry Corps."

"AMY PRENTISS," a segment of the rotating "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie," makes its debut at 8:30 p.m. Sunday on Channel 4 with a two-hour episode titled "Baptism of Fire."

Jessica Walter stars as Chief of Detectives Amy Prentiss of the San Francisco Police Department. Art Metrano also stars as Lt. Rod Pena.

Guest stars on the opener are Peter Haskell, William Shatner and Mariclaire Costello.

DORIS DAY, Dick Van Dyke and George Gobel will join John Denver for his second ABC special, "The John Denver Show," on Channel 7 from 8 to 9 Sunday night.

Doris and John will team up to sing "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" with John as a cowboy and Doris as a schoolmarm. "On Moonlight Bay" with John as a sailor and Doris as the captain's daughter, and "I'll See You in My Dreams" with John as a Canadian Mountie and Doris as "Rose Marie."

"MERY GRIFFIN and the Christmas Kids," a holiday special with Rodney Allen Rippy, Ricky Segal and other young TV performers, will be brought back for a repeat airing from 6 to 7 p.m. Sunday on Channel 11.

USC vs. Irish: The one-game season

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

The coaches are playing it low key, but the players aren't.

"We have two giant games left and I'd like to call them two steps to greatness," says Notre Dame half-back Al Samuels of today's football game with USC and an Orange Bowl date with Alabama.

"Neither team will have any trouble getting up," says Irish quarterback Tom Clements. "It's what college football is all about."

"Ten games played and an entire season to go," says Notre Dame center Mark Breneman.

Not to be outdone, the Trojans have replied.

"This is it, the rubber match," says USC tailback Anthony Davis, who scored six touchdowns two years ago when the Trojans won, then was held to one last season when Notre Dame ended a seven-year victory drought in its series with USC.

"I'll be ready," vows Trojan quarterback Pat Haden, who has a bruised knee and has been listed as a doubtful starter.

The attitudes of the players would seem to guarantee a memorable game when the Trojans and Irish collide at 2:05 p.m. before more than 85,000 fans at the Coliseum and a national and local (Ch. 7) television audience.

LINEUPS, RECORDS ON C-3

USC is a four-point favorite.

Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian still entertains hopes of a national championship.

The Irish have been beaten only once in 10 games, a 31-20 loss to Purdue, and could move into the top spot in the final United Press International poll of coaches with a favorable chain of circumstances.

USC coach John McKay surrendered his hopes for a national title after the Trojans were held to a tie by Cal four weeks ago. They had lost their season opener to Arkansas.

USC is ranked fourth and Notre Dame fifth in the UPI poll, while the Irish are fifth and the Trojans sixth in the Associated Press poll among sports writers.

"Not enough has been said about USC's defense," says Parseghian. "You have to remember that the Trojans have given up only 101 points in 10 games."

McKay assumes a similar stance with respect to the Irish, who have yielded 81 points in 10 games.

"I would have to say this is one of the best Notre Dame defenses I've seen," said the Trojan coach.

"Their defensive players are quick—not super quick because of their size—but so big they are awfully difficult to block for long."

"Our offensive line had better block or we won't move an inch."

If McKay is serious about holding Haden out of today's game, the starting quarterback call will go to Vince Evans, a multi-talented but erratic sophomore who transferred to Troy from L.A. City College in September.

Evans is more of a runner than a passer. He has gained 186 yards in 40 carries but has completed only 4 of 14 passes. The 6-2, 217-pound freight train has scored four touchdowns and passed for another.

Notre Dame leads the series, 26-15-3, but USC has won four games, tied two and lost one since the Irish battered them, 51-0, in 1966.

Texas shocks Aggies

32-3 rout puts Baylor in bowl

Combined News Services
AUSTIN, Tex. — The party was over after 54 seconds Friday in a 32-3 Texas blitz of shocked eighth-ranked Texas A&M, but it triggered a wild celebration 90 miles to the North at Waco as Baylor's impossible Cotton Bowl dream came through.

"We went absolutely crazy after the first two touchdowns," said Baylor coach Grant Teaff, whose team will host Penn State New Year's Day for the Bears' maiden journey to the 38-year-old classic.

The Texas victory clinched at least a Southwest Conference title tie for the Bears—the first such honor for the Baptist school in 50 years. Baylor can win the crown outright by defeating Rice today in Waco.

Baylor is 5-1 in SWC play and Texas and the Aggies finished 5-2.

Teaff was asked by telephone if this was the happiest day of his life and he said: "No, it isn't. Tomorrow could be, if we beat Rice. Tying for the title and playing Penn State in the Cotton Bowl won't mean nearly as much to us if we aren't the champions, if we have to share it with anybody."

The Gator Bowl-bound Longhorns scored two touchdowns in a 12-second span of the game's opening minute, following fumbles by the Aggies, who have not beaten Texas in Memorial Stadium in 18 years.

Texas won the toss, put a 33 mile-an-hour wind to its back and forced the Aggies into three consecutive damaging fumbles.

A&M halfback Bubba Bean, his fingers numb in the 40-degree cold with a chill factor of 18 degrees, fumbled on the first play from scrimmage and Travis Roach recovered.

Raymond Clayborn zipped 18 yards for a touchdown and 12 seconds later the 17th-ranked Horns were on the board again, much to the disbelief of a national television audience and a sell-out crowd of 77,584 in Memorial Stadium.

Texas end Lionel Johnson fielded a fumble by A&M's Bucky Sams and, without breaking stride, 49ers ward off pressure and L.A. State, too, 81-72

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Until Wednesday, Dwight Jones can savor the distinction of being the only undefeated basketball coach in Long Beach State history.

Jones watched his charges lose all but two of a 13-point first half advantage Friday night then saw them regroup to topple host L.A. State, 81-72, in his head coaching debut.

"Before the game I listed four things I felt we would have to do to win," Jones said afterward, "and first on the list was 'poise under pressure.'"

The 49ers had to do that to survive a furious L.A. State comeback that had a crowd of 4,078, more than half of whom were rooting for Long Beach, on the edge of their seats through the game's final 15 minutes.

Long Beach, utilizing nine players and getting points from eight of them, had played impressively, shooting 65 per cent, on the way to a 48-35 intermission advantage and nothing appeared different when they opened the final half on a basket from Carlos Mina.

But the Diablos, who saw their series lead trimmed to 22-21, refused to die, and led by Willie Jackson, Dwight Slaughter, Tommie Lipasy and Billy Mallory they began to creep up on Long Beach.

Exploiting a cautious 49er offense, which took only 10 shots in the first eight minutes of the final half, Bob Miller's Diablos chipped away at the 49er lead until Randy Echols' lay-in, off a fast-break pass from Mochie Jones, sliced Long Beach's margin to 68-66 with 2:42 to play.

But the 49ers responded with baskets by Kyle Jackson, who hit an off-balance, four-footer at 2:25, and Bob Gross, who hit from six feet, and a pair of free throws from Floyd Heaton for a 74-66 lead with 1:20 remaining.

The 49ers then gunned down the Diablos last comeback hopes by hitting seven of eight free throws in the final 1:07, John Kazmer getting three and Gross four.

Gross, as was to be expected, was the 49er standout.

The 6-foot-6 senior from San Pedro couldn't talk to reporters after the contest because he had lost his voice shouting to his teammates during the final, hectic moments.

Gross let his statistics speak for him.

The 49ers' sixth man a year ago, Gross geared a game-high 21 points and added eight rebounds and

Riley hits 38, paces Lakers

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Pat Riley's right knee was so swollen Friday night that he should not have been playing. But with Gail Goodrich injured, he had no choice but to get it out.

In a great effort, the veteran guard pumped in a career high of 38 points as the Lakers outran the New Orleans Jazz, 127-122, in their most productive game of the year.

The hard-earned victory lifted the Lakers out of the Pacific Division basement with an 8-11 record, but how long they can stay there without Goodrich is questionable.

The Lakers play front-running Golden State in Oakland tonight, host Phoenix on Sunday, then go on the road to face New York and Boston. Goodrich will miss all four games.

"It's a strange game," Riley said after his performance, which included 19 points in the final period. "I felt terrible all day and I played really bad defense because I couldn't move laterally. But my shots just seemed to go in."

The eight-year veteran calls himself a streak shooter and not as consistent as he should be. His season percentage of .398 is something he is not proud of.

But Riley hit 15 of 27 Friday and even found time to grab seven rebounds, five above his average when he was a starting forward. In the last three games as a guard he has scored 71 points.

"That was a helluva effort by Pat," coach Bill Sharman praised. "His knee is really bothering him, but did you see him dive for loose balls? Once he got knocked under a chair, and I don't know how many times he hit the floor hard."

New Orleans looked better than a 2-19 team. The Bruins lack leadership, experience

UCLA wins, 85-74, but...

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

It didn't take long to expose the UCLA Bruins for what they are — painfully inexperienced and lacking in leadership. They get a chance to redeem themselves against DePaul tonight.

Wichita State tried to pull off a basketball shocker in Friday night's season opener, but only entered the record book as the Bruins' 66th successive Pauley Pavilion victim, 85-74.

A crowd of 12,014 was almost bored to sleep for 27 minutes of errant passes, poor shot selection and an endless parade of turnovers before the Shockers caught fire midway through the second half.

Wichita cut a 60-47 deficit to 60-55 before Pete Trgovich hit a baseline jump shot, Ralph Drollinger an uncontested basket underneath, Jimmy Spillane two free throws and Wilbert Olinde a single toss.

The Bruins were in control again, but far from the precision machines that characterized the endless parade of NCAA championship teams.

John Wooden is not oblivious to the problem.

"Either we're not as good as we have been in the past or they are a fine ball club," said Wooden, "and I think they are a fine ball club."

"Any young team like ours will make a lot of youthful mistakes. You always hope they won't, but you always know they will."

The Bruins appear to lack good shooting guards except for the 5-foot-11 Spillane, who opened a few eyes with his long-range accuracy.

Spillane scored 16 points while Drollinger hit career highs of 21 points and 17 rebounds. While they were the bright spots in the Bruin attack, forward Dave Meyers, the lone Tied 79-79 with two minutes to play, Cerritos College was outscored 5-1 at the free-throw line and dropped an 84-80 decision to Golden West Friday night at the Rustlers' gym in the opener for both teams.

Freshman center Wilhe

Harold Drake capped a two-touchdown comeback from behind rally on a two-yard run with 2:01 remaining to help Bonita High knock Mayfair from the CIF 2-A playoffs with a 31-28 victory Friday night at Cerritos College.

Drake, a quarterback who completed only 33 percent of his passes in the first 10 games, hit 8 of 15 attempts for 167 yards, gained 90 yards rushing on 23 carries, scored twice on runs of three and two yards, fired a dazzling 52-yard touchdown pass to Larry Franco and converted three two-point

Mayfair held a 28-16 lead in the fourth quarter when Drake went to work. With a second and 12 situation on his 48, Drake faded and Franco made a spectacular grab at the Mayfair five to score with 6:49 remaining. Drake fired a two-point conversion to Bradley Frick to narrow Mayfair's lead to 28-24.

With 5:02 remaining, Bonita regained possession on its 22.

Behind the running of Frick, who scored in the first quarter on a two-yard run, and Drake, Bonita marched to the Mayfair two before Drake dove over on a keeper with 2:01 remaining. Lencho Nava kicked the PAT for the margin of victory.

Drake's sterling performance overshadowed a powerful Mayfair running attack.

Rich Johnson, a junior, gained 139 yards on 19 carries, scored twice—a run of one yard and a seven-yard pass from Joe Roberts—and kicked two PATs.

His running mate, Greg McSparran, added 129 yards on 15 carries, scored once and set up two Mayfair TDs on runs of 70 and 40 yards as Mayfair rushed for 324 yards, 284 net.

Joe Roberts, the Monsoon quarterback, completed 6 of 13 passes for 118 yards, and scored on an 18-yard run.

The 5-10, 160-pounder scored the first three touchdowns of the game, the first two on runs of 43 and three yards, the third a 13-yard pass from quarterback Bob Farra.

Gahr quarterback Jim Wilson suffered three interceptions and hit on only four of 17 attempts for 42 yards.

Money-shy Florida makes Memphis pay

MEMPHIS (AP)—Running back Richard James bolted four yards with 1:13 remaining to lift financially-troubled and angry Florida to an 18-15 victory over the Memphis Southern Friday night that earned the Blazers a spot in the World Football League's first World Bowl.

The rookie's run came after tight end Luther John Huarte's 45-yard bomb to wide receiver Ed Marshall.

Trailing 15-0 in the nationally televised game before an announced crowd of 9,082 which braved a cold, driving rain, Florida came back in the third period for 11 points behind reserve quarterback Buddy Palazzo, who took over when starter Bob Davis suffered a rib injury in the second quarter.

The Blazers scored on a 25-yard field goal by Dave Strock and a 21-yard run by Tommy Reamon who rushed for 122 yards on 19 carries.

USC drubs LSU in debut, 100-87

Junior forward Bob Trowbridge, rammed in 29 points as 10th ranked Southern California buried Louisiana State University 100-87 in the season opener for both Friday night in the L.A. Sports Arena.

LSU bottled up the Trojans early in the going with a zone defense and once led 18-12. But Trowbridge, getting hot from the outside with jumpers, pumped in 12 of the next 14 USC points as they eased into the lead.

USC led 49-38 at the half and LSU never caught up, although the Tigers crept to within nine points to two minutes left. LSU's high-scoring forward Glenn Hansen, guarded by Trowbridge, was held to 14 points—two in the first half.

LSU's high point man was center Ed LeBlanc with 23 points. USC's John Lambert pumped in 26 points and grabbed off 16 rebounds. The Trojans outrebounded LSU 52-34.

Pack back in picture with Hadl

Compiled from I, P-T dispatches

At the time the Green Bay Packers dealt away five high draft choices to the Rams for quarterback John Hadl, it appeared they were trading away the future without much hope of salvaging the present.

The season was just short of the halfway point when the deal was made, and while the Packers were struggling along at the 500 mark, their chief rival in the Central Division of the National Conference, the Minnesota Vikings, were off to a 5-1 start and seemingly unconquerable.

It wasn't until the ninth game of the season that Hadl was ready to start for Green Bay, and at that point the Packers were three games off the lead. But as hopeless as it seemed then, Green Bay fans are finding it not so difficult now to talk about the present.

In the three games Hadl has started, the Packers have been victorious, outscoring the opposition, 73-10. The Vikings, meantime, in quest of their sixth Central title in seven years, have lost their last two outings. So, with three games left to play, Minnesota's edge has been reduced to a single game.

Sunday, Green Bay will have an outside chance to pull even when it visits Philadelphia while Minnesota is host to the New Orleans Saints.

"As far as we're concerned, it's very simple," Packers coach Dan Devine said of his club's turn-about. "We've become more aggressive. My philosophy throughout my football career has been that an aggressive team will create its own opportunities. Sometimes

Navy favored over Army today Sooners get last chance to strut

Combined News Services

The college football season winds up its regular phase today with the University of Oklahoma making its final pitch for the national championship.

The Sooners, ranked No. 1 by Associated Press but not recognized by United Press International, are on probation and can't go to a bowl. So today's clash with Oklahoma State will leave the nation's sports writers and sportscasters, who select the national champion for AP, and the coaches, who vote in the UPI poll, with their final impression of the Sooners.

"We expect a tough battle," they're a good team, big and strong, on defense and talented on offense," Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer says of Oklahoma State. "We've won the Big Eight championship and this is our last chance to show people whether we're No. 1 in the nation or not. There'll be a lot at stake out there."

Oklahoma is favored by 28 points to make Oklahoma State its 20th successive victim. Oklahoma is 10-0 on the season and 6-0 in the Big Eight. The Cowboys are 6-4 and 4-2.

Other traditional games today include Army-Navy from Philadelphia (Channel 7, 10:15 a.m.), Georgia Tech-Georgia, Tennessee-Vanderbilt, Arizona State-Arizona and Holy Cross-Boston College.

At Waco, Tex., Baylor is favored by 14 points to defeat Rice and win its first Southwest Conference championship in 50 years. Baylor is already assured of at least a tie for the title as well as the host berth for the Cotton Bowl for the first time ever as the result of Texas' 32-3 rout of Texas A&M on Friday.

At Philadelphia, last year's Army-Navy game was the best of times for Navy and the worst of times for Army.

The final score was 51-0, biggest rout in the hotly-contested series which resumes today for the 75th time, and when the Army brass finally crawled out of their embarrassing foxhole they fired coach Tom Cahill.

Revenge would be ever so sweet for Army. Just as sweet as 51-0 was for Navy.

"I never enjoyed an Army-Navy game so much in all my life," says Steve Belichick, the Navy assistant coach who annually scouts Army. "But I would be very surprised if it happened again, and so would a lot of other people."

Especially Army. "People do rebound from disappointments," warns Homer Smith, Army's new coach. "A lot of guys who came off the field last year remember what happened."

One of them is Navy coach George Welsh, and he's got mixed emotions about the whole thing. He almost wishes the final

Jubilant members of Baylor football team celebrate in Letterman's Lounge on campus Friday as they watch Texas whip Texas A&M on television. Texas won sent Baylor to Cotton Bowl for first time and it slips away from a team. That may have happened to us after we lost those two tough games to Chicago (10-9) and Detroit (19-17). But they've overcome that now.

"The acquisition of Hadl has enabled the offense to play more aggressively...to execute a good, balanced, fundamental attack."

Hadl, asked about Green Bay's chances, replied, "We're going to need a heckuva lot of help to make the playoffs because 9-5 looks like a longshot at this point. But you never know. There's a lot of talent here, and these guys have a great positive attitude."

The Vikings, despite a string of injuries, are favored by 14 points over New Orleans, and Minnesota coach Bud Grant said, "The big thing is that we are in control of ourselves. We don't have to count on other teams to qualify. If we win two of three, we're in, regardless of what Green Bay does."

HOW DO THE NAMES Paul Christman, Charlie Trippi, Pat Harder and Elmer Angsman grab you?

They made up the "million dollar backfield" of a team called the Cardinals back in the late 1940s. Now a new backfield is bringing dollar signs—the Super Bowl variety—to the Cardinal eyes.

The Cards called Chicago their home then—and the NFL called them champions. They won the league title in 1947 and the Western Division crown the following season.

But they had to share Chicago with the Bears and, in their own city, they came out second best. So they moved to St. Louis in 1960. There have been many lean years for the Gateway City team since. Only six winning seasons and not one title in 14 years.

Until 1974, that is. Now Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Donny Anderson and Jim Otis are on the verge of bringing St. Louis its first pro football title.

All they need is a victory Sunday over Kansas City. The oddsmakers say they're all but sure bets to get it, having installed the Cards as 10-point favorites over the visiting Chiefs.

A victory would give St. Louis a two-game edge over Washington in the NFC East with two games to play. Since the Cards beat Washington in their two meetings this year, an end-of-season tie would automatically go to St. Louis, which got a big helping hand from Dallas Thursday when the Cowboys stung the 'Skins, 24-23.

In Sunday's other games, it's New England at Oakland, the Rams at Atlanta, Houston at Pittsburgh, Baltimore at Buffalo, San Francisco at Cleveland, San Diego at the New York Jets and the New York Giants at Chicago. On Monday night, it's Cincinnati at Miami.

Hart calls the signals for St. Louis' "big-play" offense, one which has made the most of momentary defensive lapses to erupt for a wave of touchdown plays covering 40, 50 or 60 yards and more.

Hart is the No. 2 passer in the NFC. He's thrown a conference-high 17 touchdown passes and has been intercepted only five times.

Metcalf, among the league's punt-return and kickoff-return leaders, is the swivel-hipped sparkplug in the backfield. He's fifth in the NFC in rushing with 598 yards, 75 of them coming on one of his touchdown bursts. Another score came on a 94-yard kickoff return. Otis is just 38 yards behind Metcalf in rushing.

Metcalf is also among the conference's receiving leaders with 32 catches for 220 yards—but when the bomb is in order, Hart usually drops it in Mel Gray's hands. The speedy wide receiver has caught 30 passes for 638 yards—a 21.3-yard average—and six touchdowns, one of them covering 80 yards.

OAKLAND HAS CLINCHED the American Conference West title and will be trying to rebound from an upset loss to Denver last Sunday. A victory would severely dent the Patriots' hopes of staying in the AFC wild-card playoff derby. New England trails Buffalo and Miami in the East by one game.

The Raiders were booed in their loss to Denver as the fans, at least, showed they haven't become complacent. The consensus was Oakland suffered a letdown after winning the west.

"It won't happen again because we won't let it," promised linebacker Phil Villapiano.

BRIEFLY: In a notice to stockholders, owner Eugene Klein of the Chargers says no profit will be made by the team in 1974. The exhibition games lost about $500,000 as a principal result of the players' strike, Klein said, and "our attendance reflects the 10 percent unemployment factor in the San Diego area."

"We're feeling the effects of the recession," he said. "I think it runs very deep and will last through next year." Home crowds in the 32,000-seat stadium in San Diego have ranged from a high of 41,706 to a low of 34,371.

Vandals broke into the locker rooms and offices of the Bengals' practice field building, Thanksgiving day and ransacked the place, the team reported Friday. "It will take at least two weeks to inventory this mess to find out what's missing," said Tom Gray, equipment manager.

THE MEDICAL REPORT: Fullback Steve Owens and tight end T.J. Blair both underwent successful knee surgery Friday but Blair is expected to be out for the rest of the year. Philadelphia placed reserve fullback Tim Bailey on the injured reserve list and added offensive tackle Herb Deebins to roster...Detroit running back Dexter Jackson is out of Miami game. Backs Larry Garlow and Don Williams are probable for Detroit. Baltimore QB Bert Jones doubtful and likely to miss fourth game in row. Billy Parks starts at wide receiver for Houston with Ken Burroughs out for year. Linebacker Al Cowhays questionable...Oakland cornerback Willie Brown out with knee injury. Jets will miss defensive end Mark Lamey (knee) and cornerback Deke Hovell (knee). Eagle QB Roman Gabriel doubtful because of rib injury. Linebacker Ray Winston and guard Ed White questionable in Vikings. Jim Pietrak replaces defensive tackle Gary Pettigrew who is out with knee injury for Giants. Back Carl Garrett misses fourth game in row, with rookie Ken Granberry from Washington State filling in. Guard Woody Peoples, who has missed four games, returns for 49ers.

Let's hear the good word from the NFL

New York Times Service
NEW YORK—For almost 30 years now, the 10 culture foundations that make up the Western Conference have been sending a party of scholars to California each winter to help a peer group from one of the Pacific Coast universities promote tourism and sell real estate in Pasadena.

Since the Big 10 and Pacific-8 give shelter to some of the most eminent educators and enlightened administrators in all of academe, it must be true that participation in the Tournament of Roses or the Sugar Bowl or Orange or Cotton or Liberty or Blue Bonnet Bowl advances the cause of formal education. However, due to a deficient intellect and a variety of character flaws, this bystander has never fully appreciated the importance of these carnivals in the educational system. It would be difficult to measure the indifference aroused here by arguments about which team should go to the Rose Bowl.

Still, if the Big 10 athletic directors are going to persevere with their annual charade, maybe they ought to play by the rules the way the undergraduates are supposed to do.

WHEN THE WESTERN Conference pledged its troth to the Pasadena promoters shortly after World War II, it was provided that no Big 10 team would make the trip two years in succession even if this sometimes rendered the best team in the conference ineligible. However, postseason competitions lost their cultural value if the team gets whipped, so that condition was soon expunged. The assignment was to go automatically to the conference champion, and if two or more tied for the title the athletic directors would pick the one that had gone to the bowl least recently.

Two years ago Ohio State went west as the champion and got smashed. A year ago Michigan tied Ohio State in the standings and on the field but the Michigan quarterback was hurt. Afraid of another licking, the athletic directors chose Ohio State. Last Saturday one Ohio State player, a field goal kicker from Czechoslovakia, beat Michigan, 12-10. Once again the teams finished with identical win-loss records, and once again Ohio State got the votes.

Redneck politicians in state assemblies could take log-rolling lessons from the men who mold young character in middle America. No more appetizing than their performance is the fact that the athletic directors keep the vote secret, as though they were ashamed of something. If they aren't, maybe they should be.

"The way I hear it," Benny Friedman said today, "There was one vote for Michigan State (which beat Ohio State). Otherwise the vote would have been 5 to 5 and Michigan would have gone."

"WHY DIDN'T YOU guys go to the Rose Bowl?" Friedman was asked. In 1926 when he was Michigan's captain and all-America quarterback, Michigan won all its conference games and Friedman-to-Benny Oosterbaan was the most famous passing combination in the world. With such an attraction in Arroyo Seco, Pasadena boosters could have sold cemetery plots to dead men.

"The Big 10 had a rule against postseason play," Ben said. "We had an eight-game season that ended around Thanksgiving. Today they play 11 games and go to a bowl. Why? For money?"

Mention of gold turned the luncheon conversation into another channel. Recently Dr. Edward C. Andrews, president of the University of Vermont, said he would recommend that the college drop football because the game was costing $27,000 a year. Up went a motel sign near the campus:

"No football at UVM. No snow in Vermont. Unthinkable." Trouble is, no money in the till is not unthinkable, and although Vermont has been playing the game since 1897 Vermont doesn't play it well and there is small doubt that the trustees will go along with Dr. Andrews. If they do, Vermont will be the first state university to give up the struggle. Unless some kind of help is forthcoming, it will not be the last.

WHERE COULD COLLEGES find financial support for their athletic programs? There are thousands of corporations and foundations in this country that endow scholarships or make gifts in other form to help develop the physicists, chemists and geologists they will need tomorrow. If American Can and the Nabisco Foundation deem this a wise investment, shouldn't self-interest suggest something to the National Football League?

Owners of professional baseball clubs are not noted for philanthropy, yet baseball has supported its own farm system for a century.

Professional football and basketball are practicing parasites fed by the colleges. It has been suggested that if the function of a college is to prepare students for postgraduate life, then perhaps a school can fulfill its purpose by teaching young men how to be linebackers for the Dallas Cowboys. If that is so, perhaps it is time the Cowboys bankrolled a few scholarships.

If football dies at Vermont, can it survive at the University of Massachusetts (beaten this year by UVM)? It is from colleges like UMass that the pros get wide receivers like Peter Berra.

Won title from Baer as 10-1 underdog 'Cinderella Man' Braddock dies

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (UPI)—James J. Braddock, whose rise from the depths of despair to the heavyweight championship in 1935 earned him the title of boxing's "Cinderella Man," died at his home Friday, one week shy of his 69th birthday.

The irrepressible Irishman, one of the most popular boxers of his era, apparently passed away in his sleep from natural causes. Police said they received a call from Mrs. Braddock about noon, saying she was unable to wake her husband.

His survivors include his wife, Mae; two sons, Howard and Jay; a daughter, Rose Marie DeWitt; four brothers and six grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

A member of boxing's Hall of Fame, Braddock, born in New York City on Dec. 8, 1905, fought 85 professional bouts during his 17-year career, winning 51, including 26 by knockout. His most famous victory came on June 13, 1935, at the Long Island Bowl when he went into the ring a 10-1 underdog and defeated Max Baer in 15 rounds to win the world championship. That victory still ranks as the biggest upset in heavyweight championship history.

It also was the climax of a remarkable comeback that stands as one of the most inspiring "rags to riches" stories in the annals of sport.

A promising young light-heavyweight during the late 1920's, his career plummeted downhill after he lost a light-heavyweight title fight to champion Tommy Loughran on June 18, 1929.

The depression wiped out his sizable business earnings, leaving him broke. Occasionally he would work as a stevedore on the Jersey docks, but things got so bad that eventually he was forced to accept relief.

In June of 1934, while he was working on the docks in Weehawken, N.J., his old manager, Joe Gould, showed up and encouraged him to try a comeback. Less than a year later, at the age of 29, Braddock got his big chance against Baer and scored his dramatic victory which earned him the nickname "Cinderella Man."

"Some still claim I must have caught a leprechaun," Braddock said a few years ago, recalling that eventful day. "The truth still is that I was a guy who did it strictly from hunger."

Braddock lost his title in his first defense on June 22, 1937, in Chicago, when he was knocked out in eight rounds by a powerful-punching 23-year-old from Detroit named Joe Louis, who in later life became one of Braddock's closest friends.

Kings get first look at Orr & Co. tonight

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Two of the glamour names of the National Hockey League, Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, arrive on the Southland scene tonight for the first time this season, but the Kings won't hoist the white flag when Boston takes the Forum's ice at 8 o'clock.

A capacity crowd of 16,000 is expected as Boston bids for its seventh win in a row. Surprisingly, the Bruins have been pushed into the background in their division by the emerging young power, Buffalo, and find themselves trailing the Sabres by eight points.

However, Boston coach Don Cherry cautions NHL rivals, "We're looking better with every passing game and we have yet to get a couple of cylinders going."

That's the way Cherry sums up the Bruins' effort with one-quarter of the season elapsed while compiling a 12-5-5 record for 25 points.

Orr remains atop the NHL scoring parade with 41 points and also has the most assists—26. He has registered either a goal or an assist in seven successive games and 11 of the last 12.

Espo is right behind Orr with 40 points. He picked up his 21st goal of the season (in 22 games) against California Wednesday to lead the league in that department as well as in power play goals with 12.

Wayne Cashman, Bobby Schemm and Andre Savard all have been sidelined with injuries, but are expected to rejoin the Bruins shortly.

But at last report, the Kings have not yet succeeded from the NHL's Division III. They proved this in their last start, Down 3-0 in the final period against the New York Islanders, coach Bob Pulford's team refused to give up and rallied for a 3-3 tie. The Kings now are unbeaten in 20 of 22 games, but they've managed only two wins in their last eight starts and lead Montreal by a scant two points. They have played a league high nine ties—four shy of their club record. The NHL record for most ties in one season is 24 set by Philadelphia in 1969-70.

ICE CUBES: When Orr scored a hat trick and picked up three assists to run up a six-point night against Washington recently, he was only one shy of his NHL one-game record for defenseman. Said Cherry, who is getting his first look at Orr from close up, "I find myself along the bench just watching him, and almost forgetting the game. I don't think records and all that stuff interest Bobby much. He just wants to win. That's the only thing that concerns him." Orr said later, "We had a good enough lead anyway so another goal or assist wouldn't have made any difference." Teammate Carol Vadnais said, "After the second period I thought Orr would get 10 points. On the power play, I kept passing to him, but he kept passing it back or to someone else."

Mike Corrigan, one of the heroes in the Kings' comeback against the Islanders, said, "In other years if we'd be down 3-0, I'd probably have lost 6-0. But Tony Esposito is in practice never to give up. We learned what he meant when we bottled back to get the tie." Rogie Vachon is expected in the nets again tonight. The popular Kings' goalie leads the NHL with a 1.40 goals against average. Though it is early, the previous low for a season was Tony Esposito's 1.76 GAA in 1971-72 for 48 games.

Green, Allin key U.S. lead in Japan golf

HASHIMOTO, Japan (AP)—Hubert Green shot a 68 and Bud Allin fired a 69, leading the United States to a five-stroke lead after the first round Friday in the fourth United States-Japan Golf Tournament.
The United States had a 581 total.

Each team has nine members, with the best eight scores each day counting toward a team's score.

Dave Stockton and Mian Takasu were the only other golfers to break par 73 on the Hashimoto Country Club course. Stockton shot a 70 and the Japanese a 71.

Other U.S. scores were Al Geiberger, 73; Arnold Palmer, 74; Doug Sanders, 74; Tom Aaron, 76; John Mahaffey, 77, and Lanny Wadkins, 80.

Wadkins' score did not count toward the U.S. total.

Lynwood targets on second playoff win

Lynwood scored its first CIF playoff win in school history the hard way with a 15-14 victory over El Modena under California Tie-Breaker regulations a week ago.

The Knights seek their second victory, hosting Corona tonight, 8.

"Corona runs a power offense with a full-house backfield and only one wide receiver," said coach Dave Thompson. "Corona seems content to run over you but its only touchdown against Fullerton last week (7-6) was on a pass."

"I think its defense is comparable to La Mirada."

That may be bad news for Lynwood (La Mirada won the encounter, 14-13) but the Knights are confident.

Last week, star running back Richard Thomas was battered although Lynwood patched him up for the overtime. Thomas gained 13 yards on two carries in the tie breaker, enough for victory.

Star wide receiver Mark Bell did not see action although Thompson is expecting his return.

"When we scored the tying touchdown last week, we were down to our third team backfield," noted the Lynwood coach. "I've seen about five overtimes and the most thrilling was last week. The fans seemed to enjoy it but it wasn't a thrill for me," Thompson laughed.

Lynwood scored on the last play and elected to kick a PAT rather than attempt a two-point conversion.

"We played in desperation the last quarter," said Thompson, "and we decided to kick and regroup in the five minutes. We taped Thomas' ankle and he responded well."

Toothache sidelines Connors with $55,000

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jimmy Connors, troubled by a tooth infection which first became apparent in South Africa last week, Friday was excused from appearing in the Masters tennis tournament in Melbourne, Australia, next month and was awarded his $55,000 bonus by the Grand Prix sponsors.

The bonus is payable on the condition qualified players take their place in the Masters field, which is made up of the top eight finishers in the season-long Grand Prix that links together 48 tournaments in 22 countries in a bonus pool exceeding $500,000.

Connors finished second in the Grand Prix with 714 points after successfully defending his South African title Monday in Johannesburg by defeating Arthur Ashe in straight sets, 83 points less than winner Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, who collected a $100,000 bonus.

Radio KFOX employees authorize strike action

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Newscasters and disc jockeys at Long Beach radio station KFOX have voted unanimously to authorize a strike against the station, and a spokesman for the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) said the union's 10 members could walk out at any time. The station broadcasts Country Western music and news.

The walkout would be the first since AFTRA negotiated a contract with the station approximately 20 years ago, according to Allan Davis, assistant executive secretary of AFTRA's Los Angeles local, to which the KFOX staff belongs.

Labor-Management problems began to surface at the AM station shortly after Walton Communications of El Paso purchased the facility from the Sponderling Broadcasting company in 1972.

Walton executives, unwilling to accept the terms of a three-year contract that AFTRA had negotiated with Sponderling earlier that year, took their case to the National Labor Relations Board. The NLRB, in turn, called on the union to renegotiate the contract. It also ruled that the new owners would have to make back welfare and pension payments to the station staff, said Davis.

Since then, added Davis, the company has come up with a number of demands that, according to AFTRA, would reduce many of the benefits hitherto won by the union — including vacation time, sick leave, and pension and welfare benefits.

DAVIS said the union is seeking no further improvements in those areas — only a "nominal" pay boost, as he put it.

Charles Berry, an attorney and spokesman for the firm, disputed Davis' assertion that the union's pay request was nominal. "We've proposed some wage improvements," he said, "but AFTRA's demands are quite substantial," he declared.

He acknowledged that the company's pension and health insurance proposals would reduce some of the staff's current benefits, but he said the reductions are necessary to put the station in a better competitive position with stations of comparable size in Long Beach and Orange County — its area of operation.

He said the company's proposals also are designed to bring the staff into a pension and insurance program covering all the Walton stations. (The company owns several independent stations in the Southwest.)

"AFTRA is trying to put us in the Los Angeles class, and our radio signals do not reach the metropolitan Los Angeles area," Berry said. "We're in the Long Beach-Orange County market, and we're actually paying better than other stations of comparable size in that market."

AFTRA, meanwhile, has filed unfair labor practice charges against the firm with the National Labor Relations Board.

Girl shot by sniper in critical condition

A 14-year-old Lawndale girl, wounded by a sniper's bullet on the Harbor Freeway as she rode to a relative's home for a Thanksgiving party, remained in critical condition Friday.

A spokesman at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital said Naomi Montijo's prognosis was "very poor."

Police Lt. Lloyd Woller said the bullet shattered the front passenger window "into a million pieces," entered the right side of Naomi's head just behind the ear and lodged in the left side of the skull.

Her father, who was driving his daughter, wife and son to a relative's home in Burbank, called police from a nearby freeway callbox.

Miss Montijo has remained unconscious since she was hit by the bullet at about 8:15 p.m. Thursday.

A hospital spokesman said she began hemorrhaging Friday morning and was taken to surgery so the bleeding could be stopped. He said she still is too weak to risk undergoing surgery to remove the bullet.

Miss Montijo's mother, Eva, remained at home Friday after being treated for severe shock. The rest of the family maintained their vigil at the hospital, the spokesman said.

Lt. Woller said no suspect has been found, and asked that anyone who was in the area of Harbor Freeway and the Imperial Avenue overpass at the time of the shooting contact the 77th Division of the Los Angeles Police Department. He said police especially want to talk to the occupants of a red or rust-colored Volkswagen that was behind the victim's car when the shooting occurred.

Probe of marijuana use by deputies told

An investigation of several deputies at the Temple City Sheriff's Division has revealed the use of marijuana by some deputies, the Los Angeles Times reported Friday.

Sheriff's spokesmen would neither confirm nor deny the report, but one spokesman without being specific said there had been an investigation about some officers allegedly violating department rules while on duty. The report said one deputy was fired, one resigned and seven others have been suspended as a result of the investigation.

Unidentified sources outside the Sheriff's Department were quoted as saying the investigation involved a party last December at which deputies smoked marijuana.

Capt. Robert Hart, commander of the Internal Investigation Bureau, said at least two of the deputies were appealing their suspensions.

Hearing on smog device suit put off

Our L.A. Bureau

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Harry Hupp Friday continued until Dec. 6 a hearing on whether the county has the right to sue the state over the law requiring owners of 1968-70 model cars in the Southland to fit special smog devices to their vehicles.

Even if Hupp rules that the county does not have the right to sue the state, lawyers for Supervisor Kenneth Hahn will seek an injunction to halt enforcement of the law in an individual class action suit. The hearing on the injunction will be Jan. 20.

The law under contention requires older model cars in the South Coast Air Basin to be retrofitted with the special $35 smog devices. The law does not affect motorists outside the basin area, which includes Los Angeles, Orange and four neighboring counties.

Jupiter storm belt shift seen

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP)

Cameras aboard Pioneer 11 spacecraft may have detected the beginning of the breaking up of a weather belt on the giant planet Jupiter, a phenomenon scientists said Friday may help them better understand the earth's weather.

Pictures taken by Pioneer 11 as it hurtled through space at 26,000 miles an hour showed a dark spot on a broad gray-white weather belt that circles the planet's southern equatorial region, said Dr. L. V. Baker, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's imaging team.

Baker said the dark spot on the weather band is almost directly opposite on the planet from Jupiter's famous Red Spot, itself a centuries-old hurricane.

"It is my guess that the dark spot indicates the weather belt may be breaking up," said Baker. He said pictures taken almost a year ago by another spacecraft, Pioneer 10, show the weather belt as a solid gray-white band.

Such sophisticated observations of Jupiter's turbulent weather system will help provide knowledge of the earth's own weather system, said scientists here at NASA's Ames Research Center which operates Pioneer 11.

Baker said that improvements in a sophisticated computer system enable scientists to receive much clearer televised photographs. They are several orders of magnitude better than those from Pioneer 10, he said.

Pioneer 11 took 15 pictures of Jupiter Friday as the spacecraft sailed through the planet's magnetosphere toward a hazardous rendezvous with Jupiter. The spacecraft will be traveling at 107,000 miles an hour — faster than any spacecraft ever has traveled — when it makes its closest approach Monday night in order to improve its chances of surviving intense radiation from the huge planet.

On reaching Jupiter, Pioneer will make the first explorations of the planet's north and south polar regions. If its instruments survive the radiation peril, scientists expect Pioneer to return the first pictures of the poles, which are impossible to view from earth.

Police seek mother of missing trio

CHULA VISTA (AP) — The mother of three children who vanished minutes before Thanksgiving Day dinner at their grandmother's home was sought by police Friday.

Police Lt. Douglas Gardner said he sent two officers to Los Angeles where the divorced woman, Sevin Warren, was believed living.

The father, Charles Warren of Clearfield, Utah, said the couple's three youngest children disappeared while walking their dog Thursday. About 15 minutes later, the dog returned alone.

Warren, a 35-year-old Teledyne Ryan Aeronautical contractor at Hill Air Force Base, said the children are Charles Jr., 9, David, 5, and Charleen, 12.

"THEY'VE never left this block in our visits in the past," Warren said. Their 14-year-old sister ran away from home last March and joined her mother who has been living on welfare, Warren said.

The mother knew the other children were in Chula Vista with Warren, his present wife and his mother although Warren had legal custody of them, Gardner said.
